Intensive Hunt Starts For Trio Of Mail Bandits

Mine Payroll Of $4,000 Taken By Daring Bandits In Daylight Holdup

TRI-STATE IS BEING COMBED

(International News Service)
GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 9.—State and county police today widened their search from Westmoreland county to include the entire tri-state district, seeking three youthful bandits who late yesterday held up Cyrus P. Markle, rural mail carrier, and escaped with a $4,000 payroll scheduled for delivery to the First National Bank of Yukon. The money, a mine payroll, had been consigned from the Cleveland Federal Reserve bank.
In broad daylight, the three men drove their automobile abreast of Markle and forced the mail car into the ditch. One bandit covered the carrier with a pistol, while the other two bound him hand and foot and placed a tightly drawn sack over his head.
"There are a lot of people starving," Markle quoted one of the men as saying. "We don't like to do this, but..."
The bandits drove the mail car into a secluded lane, cut open the registered sacks and escaped in their own machine.
The payroll was scheduled to be turned over to the Yukon Mine of the Westmoreland Coal Company for paying off the miners today.

Encouraging reports of the progress being made to correct the water needs of New Castle and other communities affected by the proposed canalization of the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenando rivers were made at the semi-monthly meeting of the board of directors of the New Castle Chamber of Commerce in the Castleton Thursday afternoon.
The action of the U. S. army board of engineers for rivers and harbors in approving the tentative examination and preliminary survey of the streams for slackwater navigation and their authorization of the physical survey of this project was received with enthusiasm. As this action on the part of the army engineers is believed to be virtually their approval of this project, which will lead to an appropriation being made by Congress for the completion of slackwater navigation facilities for this district.

Night Sessions For Congress Are Now Threatened

Senator McNary, Threatens Night Sessions To Speed Up Action

STORM WARNINGS SWAY IN BREEZE

Democratic-Insurgent Coalition Battles For Recall Of Power Commissioners

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Storm warnings to the Hoover administration were posted on Capitol Hill as the senate neared a vote on the Democratic-Insurgent motion for recall of the three new federal power commissioners.
Meanwhile three night sessions a week were threatened by Senator McNary of Oregon, assistant Republican leader of the senate, in an effort to speed legislation and ward off the prospect of an extra session of congress after March 4. McNary proposed sessions until 10 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and to force action on important appropriation bills.

Coalition Active.

The coalition commanded enough votes to insure adoption of the motion, which requests Mr. Hoover to return the nominations of Chairman George Otis Smith, Claude L. Draper and Marce Garsaud, confirmed just before Christmas as members of the new commission. The president was reported ready to defy the senate and refuse.
A tumultuous session probably will follow this impasse between the White House and senate. While the senate is powerless to force the president to obey its request, it can bring plenty of trouble to Mr. Hoover during the remaining days of the "lame duck" session.

Fight Appointments.

Rumors were current the coalition will concentrate next on a drive to reject several of the president's appointments to the new U. S. tariff commission. The five appointees were named early in December but no action has been taken to date. At least two of the appointees—Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, of Pennsylvania, and Edgar B. Brossard, of Utah—face stiff opposition.
Rejecting a few of the tariff commissioners may be the senate's answer to the president's defy, if Mr. Hoover refuses to return the nominations of the power board. The senate will have another opportunity to oust Smith, Draper and Garsaud when it considers the independent offices appropriation bill, which carries funds for their salaries. The elimination of the pay item would drive them from office next July 1.

Three Prisoners Hunted By Guards In West Virginia

Negro Life Term And Two Brothers Serving Long Terms Make Getaway

(International News Service)
MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 9.—Prison guards, county deputies and local police today were continuing an intensive search for three convicts, one serving a life term for murder, who made a daring escape from the state penitentiary here by scaling the walls with a ladder exactly at the point where a searchlight was supposed to be focussed constantly.
Fred Morgan, 32, Negro, of Marion county, convicted murderer; Wilson Boggs, 18, and John Clinton Boggs, 25, who are brothers, and serving sentences of 30 years each for armed robbery in Ritchie county were those for whom search was being pushed today.
Using a ladder which they took from the prison factory, the three men placed it against a southeast wall where it was concealed by a recently-constructed tower.
Guards were completely mystified by the escape as searchlights played constantly on the wall at the point where the prisoners went over, they said.

Backers Of Norris Bill May Cause Special Session In Forcing Action

By WILLIAM S. NEAL International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The 12-year-old controversy over the $125,000,000 war-built Muscle Shoals project will be laid before a restless Congress next week with the possibility the outcome may determine the necessity for a special session, according to plans laid by backers of the Norris Bill today.
With administration leaders already hinting a Presidential veto awaits the compromise of Senate and House conference committees, the conference was scheduled to perfect the plan today for early presentation to Congress.
Despite the attitude of House Republican leaders—Rep. Wurzbach (R) of Texas stuck with Reps. Quinn (D) of Mississippi and Fisher (D) of Tennessee in their agreement with the Senators Norris (R) of Nebraska and McNary (R) of Oregon on the Senate committee.
Under the conference committee plan, the Government would operate the huge Hydro-Electric Plants at the Alabama project, build transmission lines if necessary to sell surplus power. The President would have broad authority to lease Nitrate plants for 50 years for production of cheap fertilizer.

Party Returns To West Virginia Believing Innocent Man Was Jailed

Every indication points to the freeing of Frank Howell, now in the West Virginia State Penitentiary for the robbery of the filling station of Jack Cotts on September 29th. Authorities of Marshall County, West Virginia, interviewed Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague on Thursday afternoon in the Lawrence County jail and at the close of the interview expressed themselves as being satisfied that a mistake had been made, and that Irene and Dague were the real culprits.

The West Virginia party was headed by the prosecuting attorney of Marshall county, Lloyd Arnold. With him were Sheriff George Dorsey, Circuit Court Clerk J. E. Humes, Jack Cotts, whose station was held up, and Howard Riggs, the driver of the automobile.
Cotts convinced.
Cotts, who was held up on September 5, 1929, seemed satisfied that Irene and Dague were the parties in the holdup. "There were a couple of minor discrepancies in their stories," said Cotts, "but in the main they were correct."

And while we are up here chilling he'll be dressed in summer duds, he'll be picking flocks of flowers, hoarding radishes and spuds. Lingle Suspect Refuses To Talk

Chicago Officials Fail To Force Leo V. Brothers, Blond Gunman To Squeal

QUESTION WOMEN FOR NEW DETAILS

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Leo V. Brothers, reputed St. Louis gunman identified by a dozen witnesses as the blond gangster who fired a bullet into the brain of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, was being held incommunicado today while police sought to force a confession from the suspect.
Heavily guarded at an outlying hotel, Brothers continued in his obdurate refusal to name the men who are reported to have hired the tall assassin who put the reporter-racketeer on the "spot" in the Randolph street "redstrian" subway here last June 9.
A persistent rumor that Brothers had broken his stoical silence and admitted knowledge of the sensational crime was neither affirmed nor denied by State's Attorney John A. Swanson.
Establishment of a definite motive for the murder, Lingle case investigators say, is a necessary link in the chain of evidence which Pat Roche, chief state's attorney investigator, is now attempting to establish. The investigation will continue, he said, until all details are cleared up and the killer's employer named.
It was admitted that several men are being sought as principals in (Continued On Page Two)

Damage was estimated at nearly $15,000.

Railroad Is Planning Drive On Coal Thieves

Officers Have Orders To Put Stop To Stealing Of Large Amounts Of Coal

For some time past there has been an organized theft of considerable amounts of coal from Pittsburgh and Lake Erie coal trains passing through this city on the part of certain residents of the city, as much as eight and ten tons of coal being thrown from the trains as they pass through the city.

The gang in on this organized effort board the trains someplace between New Castle Junction and Washington street, get the coal piled up on the cars in such a way that it can be dumped off in large amounts after the trains reach the district immediately north of Grant street.

Orders have been issued to the railroad officers to use any or all means possible to put a stop to this theft of coal and those participating are not only endangering their lives in riding the trains and throwing off the coal, but are in danger from the efforts that will be made by the officers to get them.

It is not entirely the matter of the theft of the coal that has caused the railroad authorities to issue orders to the officers to use any means at their command, but the fact that in dumping off the coal, these coal thieves endanger the lives of persons that might be walking along the right of way of the railroad but their own lives, as a sudden lurch might unbalance them and cause them to fall off and be terribly injured or possibly killed, in which case they would have no claim whatever against the railroads.

Farmer Hawkins had reached a point where he could afford a silo. So he gave a written order to a manufacturing company for a certain silo at a special price 1. o. b. At the bottom of the order that Farmer Hawkins made out he wrote in his own handwriting that he reserved the right to cancel the purchase up to a certain date two months hence. And the order went forward.

In due time the silo company wrote Farmer Hawkins accepting the order, and Farmer Hawkins admitted having received this letter. In two months the silo was ready and the manufacturing company shipped it, but when it arrived Farmer Hawkins refused to accept it. He argued that two weeks before the expiration of the time he had noted on his order, he had written a letter cancelling the order. But the company denied ever having received it.

Noticed the other day another reason why railroad crossing gates are always being broken. At the P. & L. E. the crime. Witnesses declared that several men accompanied the killer into the subway and protected his getaway after Lingle was shot down. It has been established that Lingle had incurred the enmity of the North Side Aiello-Zuta-Moran gang for failure to provide protection which presumably had been paid for. Lingle's annual income amounted to $65,000 although he received only a nominal wage as a reporter.

Immediate Trial. An immediate trial will be asked for. Brothers' Prosecutor Swanson said, in announcing that the state is ready for the trial now. He will be indicted on a moment's notice, Swanson said, should an attempt be made to free him on a writ of habeas corpus.

Margaret Farmer, 26-year-old friend of Brothers now under arrest in St. Louis, will be brought here for questioning if she is willing to come. Assistant State's Attorney James McShane said, McShane admitted there is no chance of extraditing the woman.

Seven men took part in Brothers' capture here on December 21 when he was seized at his South Side apartment where he had been living as Leo Bader. He was held in secret custody until early yesterday when Prosecutor Swanson announced that twelve witnesses had positively identified Brothers as Lingle's murderer.

Girl Being Held.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 9.—Margaret Farmer, alias Walsh, 26 year old sweetheart of Leo V. Brothers, held in Chicago as the slaver of Alfred Lingle, was being held by police today for questioning by Chicago authorities.

The woman admitted that she knew Brothers, but said she had not seen him for two years, police said. Miss Farmer, a comely brunette, said she made a trip to Chicago last fall but had not seen Brothers during her short stay there.

Mrs. Robert Jessen, the mother of Brothers, declared her son was innocent when interviewed in the suburb of Webster Groves.

"I know nothing of his personal affairs," she said. "He was seldom home, but I don't believe my son did it."

"Why, he didn't even know Lingle," she said in a burst of tears. "He may die for somebody else's crime, but I am convinced he is not the murderer."

Brothers' wife, Mrs. Vera Brothers, was located here. They had been divorced. She said she married the Lingle suspect in 1919, and that he had never contributed to her support.

See Legal Battle

Chicago, Jan. 9.—A legal battle impended today over the custody of Leo V. Brothers, handsome St. Louis badman who has been identified as the assassin of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

While prosecutors were routing the "swiftest possible" trip to the electric chair for Brothers, a firm of attorneys was reported to be preparing a habeas corpus writ in behalf of the prisoner.

Meanwhile, the accused man, held in strictest seclusion by aids of State's Attorney John A. Swanson, refused to break under continual grilling, it was reported.

Appraised of the habeas corpus preparations, Charles F. Rathbun, special assistant state's attorney, in charge of Brothers' prosecution, announced:

"I am willing that this should happen. It might give us an idea, perhaps, who is behind Brothers."

"Let them file their petition for a writ. We have Brothers in custody, well guarded. And we can appear before the Grand Jury any time we desire. We will not, however, have him indicted at once. We will not bring any formal charge against him until we are forced to do so."

Noiseless Subways Are New York's Aim

(International News Service) NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—New York City's new subways, now under construction, will be much quieter. Following the reports of its own engineers, the Transit Commission sought advice from outside experts on devices to eliminate noise from the new transportation system.

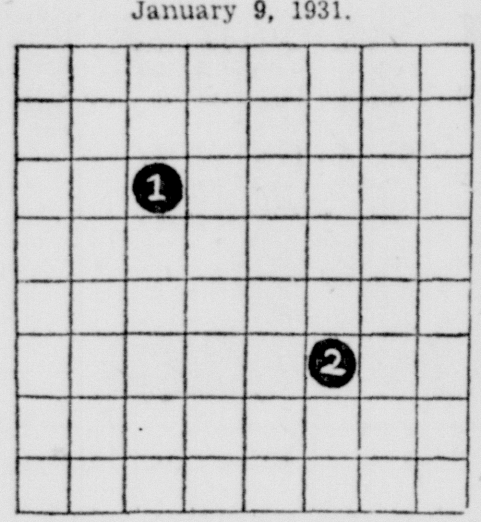

From now on, however, the work of eliminating the unnecessary noises in the underground tube will be studied by a group of experts from one of the large research laboratories under a contract with the commission for which the board of estimate has appropriated $5,000.

Noiseless turnstiles and special means for overcoming faulty acoustics will be considered by the engineers. Special sound-deadening material for roadbed and walls will be studied by the experts, based partly on experiments made in London continental subways.

This project looks very encouraging at the present time, members of the board were told, and it is confidently expected that the appropriation needed will be secured during the present session of the legislature. This would permit work being started immediately on the dam, the completion of which will make possible the construction of water facilities for industrial and municipal needs in the Shenango valley, in addition to removing the flood hazard which exists.

Commissioners Commended

The directors also received a favorable report of the action taken by the commissioners of Lawrence county and the supervisors of North Beaver township on the improvement of the road leading from the bottom of the Mt. Jackson hill on the Eron Valley road to the plant of Burton Explosives, Inc. This road will eliminate the railroad crossings of the Pennsylvania, B. and O. and P. and L. E. at Covert Station. A vote of thanks was extended the county commissioners and the North Beaver township supervisors for their excellent work in this matter.

District Engineer T. C. Frame of the Pennsylvania State Highway Department at Franklin met with the board and discussed further road improvements in this district and the proposed elimination of crossing hazards, particularly at Edenburg. Mr. Frame gave an excellent talk and stressed what could be done along these lines by the full and wholehearted co-operation of all agencies in the district. Accompanying Mr. Frame were R. W. The matter of rendering emergency relief during the present period of unemployment was discussed and it was the consensus of opinion of those present that a clearing center should be established by all of the charity dispensing agencies of the community in conjunction and co-operation with the mayor's relief committee, in order to prevent duplications of effort and make the work of these agencies easier and more effective.

Ed. O. Ellis, Nationally Known Confidence Man Is Arrested

(International News Service) CLEVELAND, Jan. 9.—Ed. O. Ellis, 42, alias Joe Hall, who is under indictment at Atlanta, Ga., on charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with a $90,000 fake race wire tapping swindle, today awaited his return to Atlanta, following a hearing on a removal petition before Federal Judge Samuel H. West here.

Ellis, reputed nationally known confidence man, was arrested in Akron Wednesday by Postal Inspector Herbert N. Graham, who stated he had been searching for Ellis and other members of the alleged swindle ring since Nov. 15, 1929, when Ellis and three others were indicted by the Atlanta federal grand jury on charges growing out of a Canton-Akron-Pittsburgh race wire fraud.

Ellis, arrested at his fashionable home in Akron, was placed under bond of $50,000 when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner W. J. Laub. When he appeared before Judge West he was ordered returned to Atlanta immediately.

Headquarters for the confidence gang are believed to have been maintained in Akron for the past five years. Graham estimates that the gang has obtained $500,000 and $1,000,000 through the fraudulent racket practiced in Akron, Canton and Pittsburgh.

RENE AND DAGUE TELL HOLD-UP FACTS TO WEST VIRGINIAN

Ellis, Cotts pulled out a knife and said, "Did you mail that knife back to me after the robbery?"

"I did not," answered Dague. The party in the jail thought this indicated a deficiency in Dague's story, but upon getting outside the jail, Cotts said: "I merely wanted to check him up on something that didn't happen. There was no knife mailed to me after the robbery, although there was one stolen from my station at the time of the robbery."

Arnold, the prosecuting attorney of Marshall county, West Virginia, seemed leary of talking to newspapermen and by evasion attempted to deny his identity. He would admit nothing, but his attitude in the jail was that a mistake may have been made in convicting Frank Howell. However, his visit to New Castle Thursday was not entirely official, as he came here to satisfy himself of the confession, and not as an emissary of Governor Conley.

Another Investigator. Another investigator, this one the emissary of the governor of West Virginia, is expected to come to New Castle and interview Irene and Dague, and if he is satisfied, as it is the party here yesterday, it is probable that he will recommend to Governor Conley that Howell be pardoned.

In describing the robbery of Cotts' station near Moundsville, W. Va., in September, 1929, Irene and Dague went into detail. They described the layout of the station, where the cash register was, what they had done and how they had escaped. Following the robbery, Frank Howell was arrested, apparently identified and convicted by a Marshall county, West Virginia, jury and he was sentenced to a long term in the penitentiary.

Attorney Thomas W. Dickey and Senator Benjamin Jarrett, counsel for the pair, were in conference with them Thursday afternoon concerning the petition for commutation of the death sentence which will be made on February 18.

Irene was garbed in a new gown which had been sent her by Mrs. Ella Mountz of Smith Mill, Pa., a wealthy woman who has interested herself in the gun girl and has said that she will aid her in her fight for life.

Ohio Man Faces Murder Charge

(International News Service) SANDUSKY, Jan. 9.—Carl Avery, 46, owner of a general store at Birmingham, near here, was to be arraigned today on a second degree murder charge following an inquest held behind closed doors into the death of William Lambert, 64, next door neighbor to Avery.

Coroner Squire, at the conclusion of the inquest, announced that he would hold Avery responsible for the death of Lambert. The latter is alleged to have died from the effects of a beating which Avery is alleged to have admitted administering.

The chief cause of man's unhappiness is easily explained. We see only the faults in things we have and only the virtues in things we lack.

GOODNOUGH READY TO SELECT COMMITTEES

Goodnough asked house members to indicate their committee desires and scores of letters have been received at his office here, as well as at his home.

It is generally believed that a majority of the incoming administration's bills will be introduced in the house and that the speaker, for years identified with the Pinchot policies, will select his committees in such a way as to permit committee action which will permit administration measures to get action on the floor.

Conferences on Senate committee appointments will likely be held in Philadelphia by Senator Augustus F. Daix, Jr. president pro tem of the senate.

Building of house committees usually takes four or five days so that little of the committee lineups will be disclosed before the end of next week and it is expected positive assignments will not likely be made until the house reconvenes Monday evening, January 19.

EVERYBODY BENEFITS

THE proposition of "trading at home" has been too often construed for the benefit of the merchant alone. There is no greater economic fallacy. The merchant may gain the first or primary benefit; the result may show up first in his own cash register. But by no means is the business man the sole heir of local patronage. Everyone is in business. It is a broad term and includes all who toil or add anything to the total of human welfare.

The merchant, the banker, the farmer, the housewife, the teacher, the preacher, the lawyer, the doctor, the laborer, the contractor—in short, "the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker" are in the same class when it comes to making New Castle what it should be. As any one of these trades or professions prospers, the rest of the community benefits indirectly.

This is an age of keen competition with the big cities. That the large city has its advantages and accommodations, all will admit. But it also has its disadvantages. If life is to survive in its fullness and richness and culture in the suburban and rural sections, and in the smaller cities and towns of this country, the economic side of the question must be given first consideration.

The business of the people of New Castle is to do business here, if it can be done with reason and to advantage. And we believe it can. Every dollar spent in New Castle makes it that much easier for the other fellow to spend his money here, and community dividends are ever cumulative.

Investing in New Castle is like getting compound interest, with the privilege to cash in on the principal.

NEGLECT OF BURIAL GROUNDS

A nearby newspaper illumines a familiar subject when it calls public attention to the neglect of many cemeteries, more particularly those old family or neighborhood burial grounds.

It is distressing for many persons to motor through the countryside and find tares and briars and weeds over the last resting places. It may be concluded that this was not always so. So long as lived those near to the dead, it may be imagined that tender care was employed in keeping the graves in order. Then came probably the removal of interested friends or the indifference that time begets and neglect followed.

The newspaper suggests that here is an assignment for family reunion associations if for no others. The suggestion seems worth while. Between picnics, many a family reunion might engage itself this summer in seeing that the burial places of the pioneers were given attention.

THE PERFECT MONTH

February will be the perfect month—not in weather, probably, nor in some other important particulars. Its perfection will consist in the fact that it realizes fully the ideas of the calendar reformers. It will be four weeks long; it will begin on Sunday and end on Saturday. This is the model the reformers seek to apply to the whole year. They would divide the year into thirteen months, each beginning on Sunday and ending on Saturday. The one day left over after this process is to be called "Year Day." The extra day which Leap Year brings every four years is to be added to "Year Day" as "Leap Year." Thus complete mathematical precision would be attained. The dates of each week would fall on the same day.

Many think we have too much uniformity already. They also urge that a rearranging of the months would play hob with historical dates. This happened to some extent when the Julian Calendar was supplanted by the Gregorian. The new year began on the first of January instead of the first of March, and eleven days were subtracted to bring the earth into step with the sun. This change was inevitable—a consideration which made the inconvenience endurable. But exactness in computation still requires double dates, though in popular usage these have long since disappeared. The question remains whether the new reform is desirable enough to compensate for the inevitable embarrassments.

The thirteenth month is to be named Sol, divided between the present June and July. It would take most persons a long time to get used to the change. The bookkeeping advantages would be obvious. But business has managed to get along very well under present conditions, and it no doubt would have its own difficulties in changes. That the new calendar would be more logical may be granted. So is the metric system for weights and distances which has long been advocated here and in England in vain, reminds the Philadelphia Inquirer. There is a pretty solid body of conservatism to be overcome before every month is "perfect."

Slowly man's inventiveness will knock everybody out of a job except the reformer.

HE'S NOTHING BUT A LITTLE BOY

When one unearths a beautiful thought, or a fine bit of writing and passes it on so that others of us may enjoy it, or profit by it, that one deserves our thanks. The following gem, the author of which is not known, appeared in "The Branding Iron," a house magazine published by The Manufacturing Stationers of Phoenix, Arizona. Every father of a boy will recognize in it himself—every lover of children will be touched by it.

Listen, son: I am saying this to you, as you lie asleep, one little paw crumpled under your cheek and the blond curls stickily wet on your damp forehead. I have stolen into your room alone. Just a few moments ago, as I sat reading my paper in the library, a hot stifling wave of remorse swept over me. I could not resist it. Guiltily I came to your bedside.

These are the things I was thinking, son: I had been cross to you. I had scolded you as you were dressing for school because you gave your face merely a dab with a towel. I took you to task for not cleaning your shoes. I called out angrily when I found you had thrown some of your things on the floor. At breakfast I found fault, too. You spilled things. You gulped down your food. You put your elbows on the table. You spread butter too thick on your bread. And you started off to play and I made for my train, you turned and waved a little hand and called "Good-bye Daddy!" and I frowned and said in reply "Hold your shoulders, back."

Then, it began all over again in the late afternoon. As I came up the hill road I spied you, down on your knees playing marbles. There were holes in your stockings. I humiliated you before your boy friends by making you march along of me back to the house. Stockings were expensive—and if you had to buy them you would be more careful! Imagine that, son, from a father! It was such a stupid, silly logic.

Do you remember later, when I was reading in the library, how you came in, softly, timidly, with a sort of hurt, hunted look in your eyes? When I glanced up over my paper, impatient at the interruption, you hesitated at the door.

"What is it that you want?" I snapped.

You said nothing, but you ran across in one tempestuous plunge, and threw your arms around my neck and kissed me, again and again and your small arms tightened with an affection that God had set blooming in your heart and which even neglect could not wither. And then you were gone, pattering up the stairs. Well, son, it was shortly afterwards that my paper slipped from my hand and a terrible, sickening fear came over me. Suddenly I saw myself as I really was, in all my horrible selfishness and I felt sick at heart. What had habit been doing to me? The habit of complaining, of finding fault, of repining—all of these were my rewards to you for being a boy. It was not that I did not love you; it was that I expected so much of you. It was measuring you by the yardstick of my own years.

And there was so much that was good, and fine, and true in your character. You did not deserve my treatment of you, son. The little heart of you was as big as the dawn itself over the wide hills. All this was shown by your spontaneous impulse to rush in and kiss me good night.

Nothing else matters tonight son. I have come to your bedside in the darkness, and I have knelt here, choking with emotion and so ashamed!

It is a feeble atonement. I know you would not understand these things if I told them to you during your waking hours, yet I must say what I am saying. I must burn sacrificial fires, alone, here in your bedroom, and make free confession.

And I have prayed God to strengthen me in my new resolve. Tomorrow I will be a real daddy! I will cum with you, and suffer when you suffer and laugh when you laugh. I will bite my tongue when impatient words come. I will keep saying, as if it were a ritual, "he is nothing but a boy—a little boy!"

I am afraid I have visualized you as a man. Yet as I see you now, son, crumpled and weary in your cot, I see that you are still a baby. Yesterday you were in your mother's arm, your head on her shoulder. I have asked too much, too much!

Dear boy! Dear little son! A penitent kneels at your infant shrine here in the moonlight. I kiss the little fingers and the damp forehead, and the yellow curls, and it were not for waking you, I would snatch you up and crush you to my breast. Tears come; and heart-ache, and remorse, and—I think, a greater, deeper love when you ran through the library door and wanted to kiss me!

GETTING THINGS DONE

We spend most of our lives in just getting things done, doing all the little things that are part of the day's work. And there are so many of these things to do . . . hundreds of them, thousands of them, an endless variety.

Going to bed and getting up again. Shaving. Eating. Catching cars and trains and boats. Cutting the lawn. Putting out the cat. Trimming the hedge. Catching a gopher. Fixing a broken window. Bringing up the wood and coal. Winding the clock. Making out checks, figuring out the bills. Getting the car greased. Remembering things.

Women have a much longer list. Keeping house. Keeping the children neat. "Correcting" them. Seeing that they wash their teeth. Getting them to bed. Planning meals. Getting them ready. Dish washing. Dusting. Waxing floors. Keeping themselves well. Shopping. Remembering birthdays. "Doing the deciding" for the family. Making beds. Doing the washing or sending it out. Getting it back again. Answering door-bells. Getting rid of peddlers. Trying to do two days' work in one.

Sometimes it seems, to all men and women, that life is a long string of little things that mean nothing and do not help at all, but merely fill up the minutes and the hours and the days and years—and bring you closer and closer to the end of things. There are so many things that need to be done and such little time to be doing them in . . . And you'll never get them all done, and you wonder sometimes if they are really worth doing at all.

But while we do all these things, while we do our daily chores, perhaps we are getting ourselves done. We are getting our own house in order. We have faults and we try to get rid of them. We make resolutions, we try to keep them, but we break them and we slip back into self-disgust and self-mistrust. We wonder if we'll ever be what we want to be. It's like doing the dishes—what's the use of washing them, when they'll just get dirty again? What's the use of trying to patch ourselves up—we'll soon have it all to do over again? . . . But little by little we get the house in shape, little by little we get ourselves in shape. We get ourselves done. Somebody might drop in to pay a call, and we don't want the house to be a mess. Something might happen to us and we don't want to be ashamed. We want to be ready for the Great Caller if he comes. And all the little jobs, all the chores and efforts may be preparing us for something worth while—something big. . . . We surely do hope so.

Loss Of Genius By Annapolis May Be A Gain For Industry

Electrical Devices At Naval Academy Interest Americans Who Feel That Navy Has Lost One Who, Under Discipline, Might Be Needed In War

"Discipline must be enforced," concede the American people, but they regret that the electrical genius of the midshipman who was dismissed for playing pranks on the Naval Academy cannot be utilized in meeting the problems of war. It is at least maintained that American industry needs that kind of a recruit.

"Life in the dormitory had developed many irregularities of late," records the DAYTON DAILY NEWS. "The elevator used by the privileged first class men took them to the fourth floor when the third floor button was pressed, and lowered them to the first floor again before they could get out. Corridor lights glowed brightly a while and then became suddenly dim."

There was interference on the telephone lines. His quarters had been made a sort of conning tower for the dormitory. A maze of wires radiated from the room where the prankish midshipman could control the electrical phenomena for the entire wing. Discipline is paramount in the military service. There was nothing for the officials to do but oust the joker. To maintain the morale of the academy the government must run the risk of losing the services of a genius like Edison.

It could constantly use him, but industry may. If war is as definitely dead as we like to think it anyway, so much the better."

"We question the justice of 'giving him the opportunity to resign,'" says the MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL. "Surely there is some place in the navy where an electrical genius could be greatly useful. Mr. Edison should be asked to invite the youthful victim of such strange discipline to take part in his next questionnaire party."

"The young wizard was told to resign and has done so," says the NEW BEDFORD STANDARD. "Probably that was the only action that could be taken to preserve peace in the academy. So prank-some a young man would be a disturbing factor in an institution where discipline is necessarily strict. Yet it seems a pity the Navy should let go of a boy with such a talent. Under right guidance the special bent which led him to play tricks might be directed toward the perfection of electrical devices of military value. Instead of playing practical jokes, he might be induced to do things worth while."

"Was his genius appreciated?" asks a writer in the PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER, making his own reply. "It was not. Instead of encouraging and developing such initiative, the Academy gave him a run-out capsule. But the Army ought to grab that chap and make him a sapper." The COLUMBUS OHIO STATE JOURNAL advises that "Annapolis should have taken that young man under its wing, given him a laboratory, and let him work day and night." The State Journal also comments: "Why kick this genius out of school? We are told the next war is going to be one of brains and genius. Our chemical warfare service and our munitions experts daily are spending thousands of dollars experimenting with devices and inventions that will out-guess the enemy. We have guns that will shoot and kill at 75 miles, or further; in fact, as some one has remarked, maybe facetiously by the time the next war is declared, all we'll need is the home address of the enemy, then the gun can be pointed in that direction and the war will be well-nigh over. Then this lad who can control elevators, make them go up when they should go down; who can listen in with the aid of wires on all the telephone conversations going in and out of the building, is kicked summarily out of the institution that trains young Americans for war!"

In the process of preparing our future naval commander, observes the BALTIMORE SUN, "the capacity to fit safely into a disciplinary regime comes first. An imagination that leads one outside of it is a fatal flaw. It may also be that the fate is most just. A young man who combines a flair to electricity with that for practical joking, of a sort, can be an insufferable nuisance in any company. Yet, with the art of war becoming more and more a matter of the misdirection of scientific imagination, and with successful practice of the art consistently departing from perfect precision in saluting, it may seem to some a wee bit unfortunate that the obvious talents of this electrical improviser could not be conserved to the nation's naval forces and directed to the national defense instead of tricks. Yet again, however, we bear to the side of authority."

The future leaders of the armed forces of the world do not have the exercise of their imaginations chained by rigid discipline, the next war might present horrors of destructive ingenuity even greater than those anticipated by its grim forecasters. Perhaps, after all, the mold of military and naval discipline is a brake on the modern engines of war. The news that the young genius will try the army instead of the navy reduced our hope that the horrors of the next war may be mitigated—unless he can be persuaded to annoy West Point by similar electrical inviolates."

While his disregard of rules and regulations will keep him out of the navy, and will not help him to admission to the army, it may prove the opening of an easy road to financial independence as an unofficial citizen of the republic," concludes the MANCHESTER UNION, but the SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) REPUBLICAN states as to the naval needs: "One can imagine a good many emergencies—such as a short circuit on a submerged submarine—in which he would have been a valuable man to have around. A modern war vessel is generally agreed to use electricity for more different purposes than any other of man's creations. Nearly 50 years ago the famous 'white squadron,' the first steel ships of the new navy, led the world's war fleets in the adoption of electric lights. Since then have come electrical devices of infinite variety, aside from those such as for cooking or refrigeration which are familiar in everyday life."

"The country may judge," thinks the CLEVELAND NEWS, "whether the authorities of the school pursued the wise course in dismissing so promising a young man. With the schools officers the maintaining of military discipline was, of course, the first consideration. Pranks are out of place in a military school, of all places; it is doubtful whether the authorities of the ordinary school would have acted differently. But, after all, it is possible that the navy needs inventive young men who can successfully tinker with electric wires, clock mechanism and the like. Upon their genius may depend the precision and effectiveness of battleships, seaplanes, giant cannon. It would be better if they confined their experiments to the laboratory, but dismissal for the ambitious sophomore of Bancroft hall may be a drastic bit of discipline the country will regret."

GIVE A THOUGHT TO DAD! No one desires to take from mothers the high place they hold. But without detracting from Mother's virtues or robbing her of the love and esteem to which she is entitled, why not praise Father and give him also some favorable consideration?

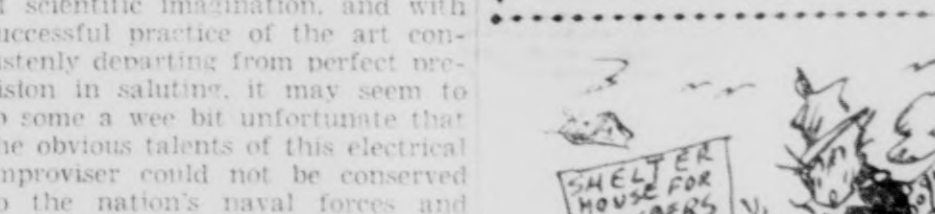

Poor old Dad is not given much credit for the important work he carries on to keep the little home and Mother and children together. Much is said about the hard work a mother does in the home. Children to care for, and the close confinement to the home, is the harped upon subject when mothers are considered in conversation.

Little is said of the struggles Dad has to hold his job; the disagreeable things he must stand to fulfill his responsibilities and the many days he must work when he is really unable to perform his duties.

Perplexities there are in the home, but exasperating situations in business must be borne by Dad, and if he speaks of them—his is grouchy today.

Dad submits every day to many things he wouldn't if he were free. It requires forbearance, love and real manhood to fulfill the position of head of a family.

THE B. D. PHILLIPS
ENTERTAIN AT DINNER

LOYAL LADIES LEAGUE
INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

"Em Court", the beautiful home of B. D. Phillips, overlooking Butler, was the scene of a pleasant gathering Thursday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Phillips entertained at a dinner-bridge a number of New Castle people.

The tables were beautifully centered with the choicest of the season's flowers, and delicious viands were used throughout the menu, while the strains of their melodious pipe organ echoed through the rooms.

Following dinner several tables of bridge were in play and high scores were won by Mrs. George Balpa and H. M. Kirk of New Castle, while the consolation prizes were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Garber of Butler.

The guest list included Mrs. Grace Phillips Johnson, Mrs. G. G. Stutzinger, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice McLane, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. George Balpa, Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Kirk, all of New Castle, and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Garber of Butler.

STAG PARTY MONDAY
AT FIELD CLUB HOUSE

Monday evening, at the New Castle Field Club house, another of the series of Stag parties will be given for the pleasure of the men members. Hosts for this date will be James B. Matthews and C. A. Burkhardt, and with the way plans have been going, it is anticipated to be one of the best held.

Cards and indoor golf will be the pastimes, and at the close of the evening, a lunch will be served.

E. N. C. Club

Mrs. Clarence Johnston of East New Castle charmingly entertained at a prettily appointed 1 o'clock luncheon, members of the E. N. C. Club in her home Thursday afternoon. After a delectable menu had been served by the hostess at a table attractively arranged for the occasion, the hours were spent in playing games. Prizes in the contests were won by Mrs. Lee Whitacre and Mrs. Lake Christie.

They adjourned to meet again at the home of Mrs. John Kalajainen of East New Castle on January 29.

Auxiliary Plans Party

Plans are being completed by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Harry L. McBride Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, for a card party to be held in the Legion Home, Wednesday evening January 14.

A good program is being planned for the evening by the members of the entertainment committee, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

SEVENTY AT P. R. R.
DINNER PARTY HERE

Gayety reigned as usual at the customary monthly dinner and general good time party enjoyed last night by close to 70 members and friends of the Pennsylvania railroad's yardmaster department forces held in the third floor assembly room over the company freight office here. It marked the first of the 1931 get-togethers.

After a delicious steak dinner, served by Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Royal and M. and Mrs. Jack Stinson, who comprised the committee in charge, the railroaders with their wives enjoyed bridge and 500. Card playing continued until late in the evening. W. B. Sturdy, yardmaster at Hazelton, took honors for bridge while Mrs. Roger Francis, this city, was winner of the 500 prize.

A number of out of town guests attended. February 12, Lincoln's birthday, the group will assemble again with Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Moore in charge.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

given in old Mexico as guests of Senor Arturo Bernal, Governor of the Northern District of Baja, California.

It had been a day of riding along new pavements laid on top of old, old trails. The trail of the padres broken by Father Junipero Serra as he came into California to establish the Missions; the historic trail of Juan Bautista de Anza when he led the first overland expedition to California across the desert. And these trails were in their turn laid over still older trails, trails so old that they are lost to history. Old trails made by prehistoric people as they made their migrations south into Mexico.

When the modern road was made through the famous sand hills they found relics of old tragedies; broken ollas (water jars) and broken weapons. One could well imagine that each broken olla in the pitiless heat, meant a terrible death back in these pre-historic days.

The road work inspected constituted an object lesson for the Mexican governors and engineers who are about to start the great task of building the international Pacific highway. Between San Diego and El Centro they saw cement being laid with gay disregard of the taxpayers' money on roads that will cost $35,000 a mile. They saw other sections of oiled roads which make better highways at a cost of $2800 a mile.

At El Centro the party was joined by E. Q. Sullivan of the California State Highway Department. He is the engineer who made the first and only study of the engineering way to lick the strange, moving sand dunes of Southern California. These moving mountains of sand travel for miles at varying rates of speed overwhelming and burying everything in their path. Mr. Sullivan spent years of experiment until he found the mechanical principle underlying their movement. Nothing has ever been written on it; it was a virgin territory in the field of investigation. He found that the little dunes actually crawl up over the tops of the big slow-moving ones and come down the other side to continue their journeys. He found that the way to conquer them was to cut a slot in the middle of each big dune. To move away the entire dune by trucks was useless, as it always came back in the same place. A dune nicked with a slot was destroyed by the wind.

Engineers have come from all over the world, Egypt, the Sahara, the Sudan, Australia and New Zealand to hear what was explained to the Mexican engineers yesterday and to see the road which finally licked the sand dunes. It is one of Mexico's vital road problems.

That Road will eventually be built.

U. S. Seizes Bicycle Used In Bootlegging

(International News Service)
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Jan. 9.—Federal laws give the government authority to seize and sell vehicles used in the transportation of liquor.

Many automobiles have been seized under this law. It remained for Federal Judge Tilman D. Johnson, however, to seize a bicycle which had been used in the illicit trade.

F. A. Gardner, a messenger, pleaded guilty in Judge Johnson's court to the sale of narcotics, and was convicted of transporting liquor. He was sentenced to two years on McNeil island on the narcotic charge and 18 months on the liquor charge.

"Tick" Book Shows What Men Drank And Read In 1834

Effort Is Made To Frighten Bachelors Into Getting Married

(International News Service)
BOULDER, Colo., Jan. 9.—Women's dress, the wickedness of New York City, and bachelors were subjects of discussion in the newspapers of a hundred years ago. Several publications of that period carried columns of ponderous comment on these topics.

All this, and much more, was revealed today when Elliott Manchester, retired Boulder farmer, unearthed an ancient "bar book" from among the family heirlooms. The book which was used to keep the "ticks" of drinkers whose credit was honored in an old New England saloon in 1834, came into the possession of Manchester's family some fifty years ago.

Although the purpose of the book was to keep an account of the drinks which were passed across the bar on credit—three cents a glass for whiskey—the owner found room to paste in among the pages a copy of a "Temperance pledge."

Pasted over other pages in the "tick book" were clippings from the leading newspapers of the day. One article headed "Mephistopheles in New York" describes that city as the "seat of iniquity." It describes the "dens of drink and vice" found in that city.

An article headed "For Old Bachelors" takes cognizance of the rapidly growing fear that the population of the country was "dying out." It endeavors to frighten single men by describing an imaginary "bachelor's island."

"The island is situated on the burning deserts of Folly, where even the savage inhabitants of the forest seldom venture to tread," the writer points out. "It is bounded by the regions of affliction, vanity and deceit, the territory of cowardice and fear, the zone of remorse, and of death and of the dead lake of oblivion."

"Here are neither wife nor children to weep over the ashes of the deceased; out owls hoot, ravens croak and the reptiles of the earth crawl over the graves. In short, of all the animals nature ever produced, an old bachelor must be the most contemptible. He lives uselessly, dies in opposition to the mandate of his Great Maker, and is at last consigned to oblivion."

The strictly business problems of the book record the drinking of the Massachusetts squire, Parmley, Potter, Keith and Phelps. Each is chalked up with his three or four whiskeys daily—at three cents a glass.

Mrs. Coolidge's Cheerful Smile Aided Preacher

Youthful Minister Tells Of Trying Experience During First Sermon

(International News Service)
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 9.—A cheerful smile from the First Lady of the Land greatly aided a 20-year-old youth in preaching his first sermon to a congregation which included the President of the United States.

"I had some difficulty getting started, but I was soon placed at ease by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge," he explained. "I never intended to follow the ministry. I always had aspired to become a doctor and was working as a bus driver in the Yellowstone Park to help pay my tuition through college, when a classmate told me of the work he was doing as a preacher in a small church."

"I applied for a position, stating that I'd like to work in the Black Hills, for I wanted to get out in the open and do a little riding. I was assigned to Hermosa, a little village of 75 inhabitants."

Lium laughingly admitted that he was paid a monthly salary of $50, if he "satisfied them." The church was only 12 miles from the Coolidge ranch, but the coming of the presidential party was not known until after he had taken the post.

"Just a few days before I was to preach my first sermon," he said, "a secret service man came to the church and said that President and Mrs. Coolidge would attend the Sunday service."

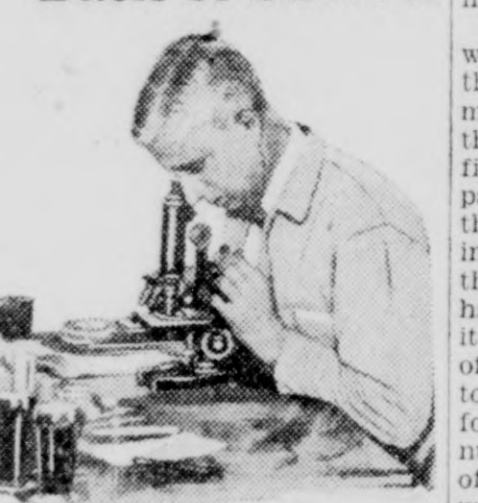

"Naturally, I was a bit upset. The idea of preaching always had appealed to me, but I hadn't reckoned on having the President of the United States in my first congregation."

"There was a lot of scurrying around to clean up the church. The little stove in the center of the church was taken up; the long pipe running along the ceiling was stripped away and the kitchen chairs which served as pews were scrubbed."

"I had some difficulty getting started but I was soon placed at ease by Mrs. Coolidge. She smiled very graciously and made me feel right at home. They came thereafter, for several Sundays and each time it was her friendly smile that helped me along."

Offers To Pay State Bonus For Trick Auto Tags

Philadelphia Wants Concession To Distribute License Plates

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—A Philadelphia several days ago offered $20,000 annually for an exclusive concession involving distribution of automobile license tags bearing so-called "trick" or "fancy" or low numbers.

"I see by the papers that the Bureau of Motor Vehicles has issued over 24,000 special numbers for 1931," the Philadelphiaian wrote Benjamin G. Eynon, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. "I am willing to pay the Commonwealth $20,000 per year for the sole privilege of disposing of or distributing such tags. In fact, I believe I would be justified in paying an ever higher sum. The State sells the motor license lists to a commercial enterprise. Why not the special numbers?"

Commissioner Eynon several weeks ago suggested that the Commonwealth's annual revenue would be increased were it to charge a extra fee for special numbers desired by automobile owners. His suggestion was an added $10, and had such a fee been exacted the State would have been over $240,000 richer from the sale of special tags for 1931. As told by the Philadelphiaian quoted, the names of car and truck owners are sold to a Harrisburg concern which in turn purveys mailing lists. The Motor Code provides that the lists be sold to the high bidder.

"Perhaps the man who wrote me would not be averse to bidding for the privilege," commented Commissioner Eynon. "I agree with him that $20,000 is perhaps too low a figure. I know owners who would pay $25 or more, rather than lose the plates they have been displaying for years. The low number, or the trick tag, becomes sort of a habit with the possessor, and loss of it would be accomplished by a sense of loss caste. At least it seems so to me, judging from the frantic efforts of individuals to land certain numbers or combinations. The offer of the Philadelphiaian, however, is a matter for the legislature."

Enjoins Mate From Talking To Her

(International News Service)
DENVER, Col., Jan. 9.—"And don't you ever speak to me again." With these words Mrs. John V. Jamney ended the argument. Then, to make sure Jamney didn't misunderstand her she went to the Denver district court and got an injunction barring him from visiting her or talking with her either in person or over the telephone pending settlement of her divorce suit.

From now until the Jamney divorce case is finally ironed out in court, Jamney will have to communicate with his wife, if at all, in writing. If he should wish to attempt a reconciliation he will have to "say it with flowers" or take a chance on going to jail for contempt of court.

Living Food Is Needed For Frogs

(International News Service)
DAVIS, Cal., Jan. 9.—Frog farming can be successful on one condition.

This is the belief of Prof. T. I. Storer of the University of California division of entomology in the branch of the College of Agriculture here.

He says that although the market is good, and the demand could be built up to much higher point, frog farming can be successful only where living, moving food can be obtained.

The extent of the demand for frogs, he says, is shown by the fact that 1,500 dozen frogs were shipped to a single California dealer in one year. He believes this would be increased if a regular supply could be obtained.

Council Continues Revision Of Second Ward Valuations

During yesterday afternoon's session of the tax revision board composed of councilmen, it was indicated that East Washington street property in the Second ward would be restored to the 1927 assessment.

The indication came after it was reported that one assessment of $45,880, on ground, in 1927 has been increased to $61,710 by the assessors. Councilman Reeves remarked that business conditions are not so good and some rents had been reduced.

Councilman Genkinger expressed himself as being favorable to a return to the 1927 rating or as nearly thereto as proper. Other councilmen listened and although no definite action was taken it was suggested that before any increases were made that every phase be considered.

It was the land owned by Emma Boyles that brought the indication. It has a 23 foot frontage to an alley 180 feet deep together with a lot on the alley 27x75 feet.

Councilman Burns yielded his pencil relative to the 1927 assessment and it developed that would be $1995 per foot front. Some land is as high as $2300 per foot front and Burns suggested that before making any increase that it be thoroughly considered, as Reeves suggested.

Later the board considered the assessment on the land and building assessed to B. P. Butler. No increase was made in the land, $27,090 but the building was raised from $5,000 to $6,050. This was restored to $5,050.

Apparently half of the building and ground is assessed at the same figures, approximately as the council said the cut was in proportion to one made earlier. In regard to the Boyles building assessment of $10,430 raised to $10,860, it may be changed to $10,430.

The board members gave every indication Thursday of being desirous to return the assessments to the 1927 assessment when they acted on dwelling assessments and on some thoroughfares a foot front price was set, excepting at corners.

For instance Lincoln was assessed at $35; Rhodes Place $30; Boyles $27; Wallace $35; Park $27; Winter $25; Glenmore $15; Euclid $14 and other thoroughfares were given foot front assessments.

Relative to Lincoln, Wallace, Park and Boyles, Councilman Reeves claimed that property there was not worth so much per foot front as farther north. He said on Lincoln, parking at the Cathedral and senior high school made property less valuable in his estimation.

Contrary to the belief of many second ward property owners that each assessment would not be considered council at the behest of Councilman Burns early Thursday decided to study every assessment, whether or not an appeal had been taken with the board.

There were some instances in which small increases or decreases had been made by Bion Cover, city assessor, who attended the session and when asked why he made increases stood firm on every assessment he had made, convinced he had repeatedly said, they were merited.

Some Changes Made
Among the house assessment changes yesterday afternoon were:

Young Wife
Happy Now

"Before my little daughter was born I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly. I was able to do my usual work and take pleasure in doing it. We were so happy when a wonderfully fine baby girl arrived to bless our home. I have enjoyed better health since the baby's birth than ever before. I am sure that I owe it all to your medicine and I heartily recommend it to all women who are weak or ailing."—Mrs. Chester Decker, R. R. #1, Wheatland, Indiana.

This includes not only young men of the city and vicinity who might be interested in joining the service, but also their parents, relatives and any person who would like to learn something about what the United States Army really does for young men of the country.

Sergeant Thompson would like to have those interested in listening to such a talk get in touch with him without delay so that a night suitable to the greatest number might be arranged.

Major Lindenstruth's story will be of intense human interest, telling how he rose from the rank of private to that of major, through service in many parts of the world. Motion pictures of life in many of the Army posts will also be shown.

SPRAY EARLY TO CURB PEACH LEAF DISEASE

Pressure of spring work and interference of bad weather often delay spraying for the control of peach leaf curl. If the spraying is done after the buds crack and the leaves emerge the application will be ineffective as infection already will have occurred.

Peach leaf curl is a fungous disease which often is quite destructive in orchards of this state. Even in localities where the disease is not severe, it is good insurance to spray.

This disease passes the winter in the form of spores adhering to bud scales. Unless the spraying is done before the peach buds crack, it is ineffective. Dormant strength lime-sulphur of 1.03 specific gravity prepared by using one gallon of concentrated in 10 gallons of spray, will kill the scales if applied any time after the leaves have fallen until swelling of the buds begins. After the fungus enters the buds, spraying is ineffective.

To be certain that the spray is properly applied, it is suggested by the extension plan pathologists of State College that the spray be put on before the critical stage. The spraying may be done on any warm day when the weather permits. The chief precaution to observe is that the temperature should be high enough so that the spray will not freeze on the twigs. If conditions prevent spraying soon, then the spray should, by all means, be applied before the buds begin to swell in the spring.

ORDER GARDEN SEEDS EARLY TO GET BEST

Lawrence County vegetable growers have found it a good practice to order their seed supply early after the new seed catalogues have appeared.

Farmers who are not on the mailing lists of one or more seedsmen should write for catalogs. While commercial growers usually prefer to divide their orders among several seedsmen in order to take advantage of superior strains which one or another may carry as specialties, the home gardener needs such small quantities that usually he orders from only one firm.

It is well to remember that the best strains and varieties carried by seedsmen are usually sold out first. If seed is ordered, therefore, in late winter or in the spring one may not be able to get the best.

While seed catalogs are sent to Pennsylvania farmers in January, the same catalogs have been received by Florida growers in September or October and correspondingly farther north during November and December.

LOOK FOR CLOVER PLANTS BEFORE PLOWING STUBBLE

Before plowing the stubble of grain fields seeded to clover, be sure that there are not enough small plants to develop into a fair crop of hay.

Thin strands sometimes can be thickened by sowing more seed early in the spring, especially if it is harrowed in or is drilled in with a disk drill. Clover or alfalfa sown in the spring should make a cutting of hay in late summer. A little fertilizer will help to give the new seedling a start.

Meadows mowed last year can be held over another year, and the grain stubble, well manured, can be plowed for corn. A mixture of 100 pounds of nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia and 150 pounds of super-phosphate, applied before the grass starts growth, usually will increase the timothy crop 50 to 100 percent. From 300 to 400 pounds of mixed top dresser, carrying 7 or 8 per cent or ammonia, may be used. By cutting timothy just before the bloom stage, a hay nearly as good as mixed clover and timothy can be produced. Timothy cut much after bloom contains only about half as much digestible protein.

FUTURE OF YOUNG TREE DEPENDS ON TRAINING

Exercise good judgment in pruning young trees.

Most growers feel that an annual program of pruning is the best practice. Such a practice is satisfactory, when it comes under the following rule: Prune young trees lightly and older or bearing trees more severely.

To prevent harmful errors in pruning the grower must be able to visualize what the most efficient producing tree should look like. In order to bring about efficient production it is essential that the structure of the tree be such that it will be capable of producing heavy annual crops over a long period of time. Consequently, the pruning of young trees should be directed toward a strong framework of well-spaced branches.

Removing the central part of a tree is not recommended. The day of the open center tree is past, except where young trees were mutilated years ago and there is no recourse other than that of enduring heavy breakage.

Proper pruning of young trees, along with light pruning at this time, will insure profitable production and earlier bearing. The question of light pruning versus heavy cutting has been definitely decided in favor of the light treatment which results in a 'larger tree and earlier bearing.'

Some growers may feel that no pruning is necessary, but an occasionally heading back of competing branches in order to correct weak crotches or to eliminate the growth of one of two equal main uprights is essential.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR FARM PRODUCTS SHOW

From an announcement made by R. G. Bressler, Director of the Pennsylvania Farm Products Show, final plans and programs for the Show are nearing completion.

The 1931 Show will open in the New Farm Show Building in Harrisburg Monday January 19th. There will be a continuous program of activity until the closing of the Show January 24th. This will include Live Stock Judging, Special Programs by members of the 4-H Clubs and Vocational Students, along with the Annual Meetings of a number of Pennsylvania Farm Organizations.

Through the courtesy of the Trunk lines a special rate of fare and one-half has been arranged for all railroads leading into Harrisburg, by the presentation of a certificate to the Agent at the time of purchasing ticket. These certificates, along with programs of the entire show week activities may be secured at the office of the Agricultural Extension Association, South Croton Avenue, New Castle.

Constable Dies Of His Wounds

Constable Shot In Beaver County During Attempted Raid, Dies
In Hospital

MAN WHO WIELDED GUN, ALSO DEAD

(International News Service)
SEWICKLEY, Pa., Jan. 9.—Charles Wyke, of South Heights who disregarded threats by Robert Fielding, 74-year-old convicted bootlegger and attempted to raid Fielding's home, died in the Valley Hospital here today of a bullet wound inflicted by Fielding.

Fielding, a former British soldier with World War and Colonial Service experience, turned the gun on himself immediately after wounding Wyke and died instantly. The raid occurred on Monday.

Beaver County authorities said that Fielding, twice convicted on liquor law violation charges, had previously threatened that the next officer who attempted to raid his home would be met with bullets.

Wyke and Deputy Constable John Haggerty disregarded the threats and went to the front door of the Fielding home. Wyke displayed a search warrant. Mrs. Lucy Fielding, the former trooper's wife, pleaded with the men to leave before her husband, who was on the back porch, became aware of their presence.

Fielding suddenly darted out the front door, shot Wyke in the back and then killed himself.

Jealous Suitor Hunted In Death Of Chicago Woman

Officials Believe Jealous Suitor
May Have Killed Woman
In Her Apartment

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Proceeding on the theory that a jealous suitor may have killed Mrs. Margaret Stevens, 35, a divorcee, who was strangled to death in her apartment here, police today were searching for several acquaintances of the woman.

The woman came here from Kansas City two years ago and was to have married George Nielsen of Crown Point, Ind., in March. Discovery of the coming marriage may have provoked the other suitor to commit the murder, police believe.

Nielsen when questioned by police said Mrs. Stevens was about to become a mother.

The divorcee's body was found in bed, a towel tightly wrapped about the throat. The slayer apparently had twisted the ends together to exert the necessary pressure.

The executive committee held its pre-convention session here last night with D. N. Slep of the Altoona "Mirror", and president of the association, presiding. The committee recommended that the next annual convention be held in Harrisburg and that no 1931 summer convention be held.

Assures Start On River Survey

President Bray Of Tri-Rivers
Association Told
Work Will Start
At Once

President T. J. Bray of the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango Rivers Improvement Association has been assured by Major General Lytle Brown, chief of engineers of rivers and harbors, that the survey of the three rivers provided under the Swick-Reed legislation incorporated in the rivers and harbors omnibus bill, signed by President Hoover on July 3, 1930, will be started at once.

Mr. Bray was informed by General Brown that the district engineer at Pittsburgh has been instructed to proceed with the survey at once. Boosters of the tri-rivers project believe that it is inconceivable that such an important industrial area as that existing in the valleys of these three rivers in western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio shall long be denied water transportation facilities, and feel that splendid progress is now being made on the project.

Infant And Nurse Burned To Death

Home Of Indian Medicine Man
At Kankakee, Illinois, Is Completely Destroyed

(International News Service)
KANKAKEE, Ill., Jan. 9.—Complete mystery today surrounded the fire which completely destroyed the home of John Moore, 35, an Indian medicine man, killing his nine-months-old son, Leslie Moore, and the infant's nurse, Susanna Piggus, 18.

The fire, said by Sheriff Albert Goodneck to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed Moore's "laboratory" of patent medicines as well as his home and garage.

Firemen of the town of Herscher were able to rescue Moore's wife, a cripple, and his two-year-old son, but the infant and its nurse were trapped on the second floor. The nurse's body was recovered but that of the infant was burned in the debris.

The middle class is the one that might be either the others if it had a little less money or a little more.

Girl Fliers Pass 100-Hour Mark In Endurance Record

California Girl Fliers Have Broken Women's Record
By 67 Hours

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 9.—Having shattered the previous endurance flight record for women by more than 67 hours, Bobby Trout and Edna May Cooper were still adding on the hours early today. At 3:30 a. m. (Pacific standard time) they had been in the air for 100 hours. Their plane, the "Lady Rolph", apparently was functioning perfectly as it roared around the municipal airport in wide circles, and its occupants had not given the slightest indication when they would terminate their flight.

Weather conditions for flying were good. Wednesday night the women fliers took their ship to El Centro when rain clouds threatened. They returned here yesterday.

Kellogg Finds Out World Court Issue Has Difficult Path

Frank B. Kellogg, Will Return To Europe Distinctly Discouraged

Old Senatorial Colleagues Fail To Give Kellogg Much Encouragement

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—A distinctly discouraging report on the prospects of the United States joining the world court will be taken back to Europe shortly by Frank B. Kellogg, one-time secretary of state, and now a judge of the court.

Kellogg returned to the United States a short time ago fresh from receiving this year's Nobel peace prize and desirous of aiding in whatever way possible American adherence to the tribunal that has honored him with a place on its bench.

Pathway Is Rocky.
Several days spent in Washington, in which he has conferred with a number of old senatorial colleagues, has convinced him that the pathway to American adherence is still a rocky road and beset with many difficulties.

Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, bluntly informed the former secretary of state that the court now has 28 senators who will vote against the court, and there are prospects of half a dozen more in sight after the issue has been subjected to the analysis of debate. Twenty-eight votes in opposition possibly would be enough to insure rejection of the court. For the senate seldom musters its full strength of 96 members, and it requires two-thirds to ratify. If all are present and voting it would require 33 votes to block adherence.

President Hoover, however, is reported still to be confident that on a final showdown he can secure the necessary two thirds. His confidence is considered misplaced by the court opponents, nor is it shared even by those administration senators who will follow his wishes.

Little Consequence.
It is considered of little consequence, so far as the voting line-up goes, whether the court is considered in the present senate or in the new senate which automatically comes into being at noon on March 4. In fact, the court opponents feel they will have more strength in the new senate than in the present one.

A number of the senators-elect who will take their seats this year are already pledged against it. A conspicuous example is Senator-elect J. Hamilton Lewis (D) of Illinois, who was one of President Wilson's staunchest supporters in the league of nations fight.

President Hoover has refrained from committing himself on the matter of whether he would or would not call a special session of the senate of the 72 congress after March 4 for the purpose of considering the court issue. His secretaries have asserted that he would not, but pressure exerted by senate leaders for definite confirmation of this by Mr. Hoover himself has resulted only in silence.

Mr. Hoover's dilemma with regard to the court is acute. American adherence is a part of his pledged program. At first he hoped to see the court protocols ratified in the present lame-duck session. Senate leaders speedily persuaded him against forcing it at this session on the ground that if he did so it would cause such a fight that little other legislation could be gotten through, and a special session of both houses of the new congress would be inevitable. This Mr. Hoover was particularly anxious to avoid.

Is Sad Dilemma.
He then considered—and may still be considering, for all Washington knows—summoning the senate of the new congress back into session after March 4 solely to deal with the court. This has met with overwhelming opposition. His friends have informed him that if he did this he would "have the senate on his hands all summer," a contingency which Mr. Hoover does not view with relish.

The remaining alternative is to force the issue in the regular session of the new senate which opens next December. The trouble with this procedure is that the court fight would drag long through the winter and spring months and right up to the door of the presidential campaign. Another contingency which Mr. Hoover does not relish. He had hoped to have the court over and done with in advance of the primaries and elections of 1932, for they promise to be hectic enough without the added issue of the court. It is a dilemma.

Dr. G. W. Wellburn
Will Speak Here

Sunday School Leader In State
Is Coming On January 22

Dr. George W. Wellburn of Philadelphia, Superintendent of Christian Education of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association, will be the chief speaker at the afternoon session and Christian Fellowship dinner in the evening, at the Mid-Year Efficiency Conference of the Lawrence County Sabbath School Association, to be held at the Y. W. C. A. parlors and dining room, Thursday, January 22.

The program of the conference will touch upon the various phases of Sabbath School work and the new Standards "A" and "B" particularly the latter, will be discussed.

At the conference a shield will be awarded for the Lawrence County district—and there are eight—that has the best percentage of attendance of district officers and district superintendents at the conference. Any district officer who is unable to be present will be allowed to send substitute, and this substitute will be counted just the same as the officer or superintendent. For the last three years the Pulaski District has won this coveted award, but this year an effort will be made by other districts to break the record established by Pulaski District.

Plans were completed for the conference at the meeting of the Executive committee which was held in the parlors of the Y. W. C. A. with the following present: President, Robt. M. Strickler, Jr.; Secretary, Mrs. Wm. J. Marshall; Home Department Superintendent, Homer C. Drake; Teacher Training Superintendent, Mrs. Robert Nesbitt; Children's Division Superintendent, Mrs. M. E. Vaughn; Administrative Division Superintendent, Miss Anna Perry; President of Ellwood District, La Verne Bauder; Member of Executive committee, Rev. D. C. Schnebly.

Mrs. M. E. Vaughn, the Children's Division Superintendent, announced a Children's Division Institute to be held at the Second U. P. church, Thursday, February 5th. The State Children's Division Superintendent, Miss Reed, will be a speaker and a conference dinner will be served. All those interested in the work of the Children's Division, teachers especially, are urged to be present as it is thought that the conference this year will be fully as helpful as the splendid one held last year.

Advertising Will End Depression

(Special To The News)

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 9.—Extensive advertising will lead the country out of the present business depression, Gilbert T. Hodges, president of the Advertising Federation of America, recently told members of the Advertising Council of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

"We have plenty of production," he said, "America could produce, if she were put to it, nearly all the manufactured goods the entire world needs. What we need is consumption, and one of the greatest urges to greater consumption is advertising."

"By its educational influence advertising has persuaded the people of the United States to seek and obtain a higher standard of living than was ever before attained by any people of the earth. Advertising has stressed the value of swift transportation, the necessity for good roads, taught people what clothes they should wear and food they should eat. In short, it has pointed out the road that leads to health, happiness and prosperity."

Lavish Millions

Parents Pay Bills That Keep York Hotels Ablaze Nightly Until Dawn

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The debauched season has reached its peak with Christmas week, and parents who present their daughters to society this season will pay an aggregate bill which will run into several million dollars.

Ball rooms of fashionable hotels, spoken for months and even years in advance, have been ablaze with light until dawn every night for weeks. The let-up will not come until mid-January, and a sprinkling of debut parties will continue clear through February.

Catering to debutantes is a big industry in New York, for girls come from all over the country to make their bows in the Ritz-Carlton, Hotel Pierre, the Central Park Casino, Sherry's, the Savoy-Plaza, Park Lane and other hotels.

The managing director at Pierre's estimated today that 180 girls will have "come out" there during the season which began in October and ends with February.

Their parties will average $3,000 in cost, which totals more than half a million for one hotel. Charles Pierre placed the average debutante supper-dance invitation list at 400 persons though many parties have twice as many guests. Last week at the Ritz-Carlton three important debutantes had parties to which a thousand guests were asked.

Barbara Hutton, pretty granddaughter of the late Frank Woolworth, five and ten-cent store founder, had a Ritz-Carlton debut at which the music alone cost several thousand dollars. Rudy Vallee's orchestra played at her party and Le Argentina danced. A dinner party for 200 guests was followed by a supper dance, and there was a breakfast party at dawn for the inebriated guests.

Has 1,000-Guest Party
Another thousand-guest party was given at the Ritz-Carlton for Peggy Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

equipped with modern firearms which saved him and his comrades from going into the soup kettles of the savages. After defeating the natives in battle, doctors are sent in to treat their wounded and the white man's supremacy is established. Little by little the country is thus being conquered.

Once routed in battle, the savages are quick to fall into line and seldom give any trouble. Chinnery declared their permanent friendship is won through the care given them. Those diseased are treated and they are made to observe the white man's code of sanitation and social relations.

Copra is the leading industry of New Guinea at present, but mining of gold may soon surpass it. The richest gold mines are located only 30 miles from the coast, but this is an eight days' journey on foot, the only accessible way into the interior except by airplane. Several peaks, ranging as high as 15,000 feet have to be scaled to reach the gold fields. Mining companies are trying to produce smaller units of machinery and larger airplanes, so that the machine may be taken inland by plane.

The Australian mandated territory of New Guinea. He sailed for his cannibal domain recently following a 12-months' tour of the world under the auspices of the Rockefeller Foundation.

"There is probably no more interesting place in the world than New Guinea," said Chinnery. "Its wealth is untold. There are hills in the interior of almost solid gold, yet the country is so wild and undeveloped as to make mining operations extremely difficult and hazardous."

Chinnery makes his headquarters at Rabaul, largest city and the territory's principal seaport. His duties are to explore the interior with a view to bringing the savage tribes into the folds of civilization.

In the unconquered sections, which are gradually being brought under control, the scientist declares there dwells a savage race of cannibals and head-hunters, known as Papuans, who are very warlike. They fight with spears, and bows and arrows, and their human foes, if defeated are converted into food. Chinnery has headed many parties into the jungles of the interior. Friendly natives served him as guides. His expeditions were always

Don't Encourage Whims In Child's Upbringing

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
Head, Division Parental Education,
Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

During the second and third years of our oldest child I recorded notes on what seemed to me to be whims. They were published in the Pedagogical Seminary, March, 1924.

Then I wrote: "There are presented with the hope that they may help us a little to interpret more charitably the conduct of children. Obviously these notes are not meant to be models of child training."

Indeed they suggest the kind of training not to give a child. At that time Mrs. Myers and I were guided mainly by one principle—to induce the child to do without emotional resistance, regardless of the time and patience necessary, and regardless of the number of whims inevitably developed in him.

We are rather ashamed of these records, although at the time they were made I didn't think they were so bad. When they were published, almost ten years later, we had greatly modified our views and methods of procedure; yet for the cause of science we were willing to have them appear exactly as recorded. It should be added that the major principle of avoiding conflicts we have still maintained. Mrs. Myers being the skillful one in applying refining techniques in its observance, so as to avoid developments of the kind of foolishness betrayed in these notes.

Day 390. When on second feeding J. refused cereal, he pointed to the water pitcher. Given a drink, he took his cereal, then wanted a drink before each succeeding spoonful, and would have it no other way.

Day 445. For some while has been given water from a glass only. When offered water from a cup today refused it, but drank freely from a glass.

Day 552. For some time when, upon his refusal to eat the last part of a dish of cereal, we put the spoon through the back of the chair he will take it with great pleasure and thus seem to relish much more food.

Likewise, when his first acute appetite is satisfied, he will coax one to put the spoon through the chair back to feed him.

Day 563. One evening for fun, I sprayed his foot before spraying his throat, and for a week this had to be repeated.

Day 580. Tonight he would not eat for me at all, but ate heartily for his mother. She usually has been feeding him.

Day 626. Mother only can do things for him. Almost always irritated by nurse when she tries to do anything for him. (Has scarlet fever.)

One kind of medicine he likes, but mother must always sit down to give it to him. She had sat when giving it to him the first time.

Once she threw the ball against the wall to amuse him when he did not want to take his milk. Now that must be repeated before he will drink the milk.

When he found my hat on the table it had to be put away, but when mother started to put it away he objected. I had to do it.

Don't do as we did then if you wish to avoid a lot of nuisance to yourself and numerous and riding whims in your child. I regret that we kept no record of how we finally trained these bad habits out of him. Nevertheless, we gradually did so pretty well, I think, and we feel no need to apologize for the behavior of this same child now in college. Measured by the standards we believe in, we are pleased with his development socially and mentally. Of course, we are his parents and are likely, therefore, to be greatly biased. Anyway, I find in our experience a little comfort for the parent who may have thought that early bad habits never could be changed.

Many Disability Claims Acted On By Vets Bureau

Half Of Number Adjudicated In Pennsylvania Allowed By December First

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
(Special Washington Correspondent
Of The New Castle News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 9.—Of the total number of all applications for disability allowance received in the United States veterans' bureau from veterans residing in Pennsylvania, 49.47 per cent had been adjudicated by the first of December, and of these slightly more than half were allowed, according to the field office report of the bureau of that date just made public.

A total of 13,781 applications was received from Pennsylvania veterans for disability allowance, of which 3,647 were allowed. Those disallowed numbered 3,065, which left 6,469 applications pending at the time the report was made.

Of the total number of veterans living in Pennsylvania allowed disability claims, 2,056 were awarded 25 per cent, 785, 50 per cent, 256, 75 per cent, and 550 veterans were allowed total disability.

The report was submitted by Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, to the subcommittee of the House committee on appropriations, and included in the hearings on the first deficiency appropriation bill of that committee for 1931. General Hines was called before the committee to explain the necessity of two appropriations for pensions which were submitted as part of the first urgent deficiency bill for the veterans' administration.

Says He Bribed Officials With Free Hair Cuts

MEDIA, Pa., Jan. 9.—A Ridley township barber, testifying for the state in the trial of four township officials on charges of conspiracy to give protection to liquor law violators, said today he not only made weekly payments to the defendants for the privilege of operating a still but also had to give them free haircuts and shaves.

The barber, Charles Plasocinsky, of Leipsville, said the officials, after getting free shaves and haircuts, "sometimes picked up a bottle of hair tonic and walked out."

Peter's Adventures

READY FOR A QUEER RIDE

What was Commander talking about? Peter soon found out. Live-ly, the Black Ant, stepped up and bent over her mistress. The big Red Ant and the smaller Black Ant locked jaws, and when Lively raised her head, she lifted Commander. Before the boy had time to say a word, off trotted Lively, carrying her burden, and she walked so far that Peter had all he could do to keep up with the Black Ant.

Out of the tail of his eye the boy noticed that all around him the same thing was going on—slaves were making "horses" of themselves to give rides to their lazy mistresses. The strange thing about it was that the Black Ants did not seem to mind being insects of burden. Not one of them looked cross or tired. As a matter of fact many of them appeared to be genuinely fond of their mistresses, they lifted them so gently, were so anxious for their comfort. Peter was at a loss to understand it. "I always thought the Black Ants were a good-natured lot, but they must have even better dispositions than I thought," mused the boy. Keeping his eyes and ears wide open, Peter became so interested in the things he saw and heard along the way, that he was at his journey's end long before he knew it. Suddenly he found himself at the foot of a large mound of earth, with a door in its side. Lively did not stop outside this door, but walked right in. Commander clinging to her jaws—and Peter followed. Having come this far he must see the thing through, and besides, he did not feel at all safe far away from Commander. However, the boy had not gone very far before he was rudely challenged.

Chicken Thieves Find Fowls Costly

(International News Service)

WEST HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 9.—Chicken, hereafter, will be ranked an expensive tid-bit in the menus of Walter Schalack and John Klotz—unless they change their methods of obtaining the birds.

The pair were found guilty of stealing 50 chickens here, were fined $50 and costs, ordered to pay the value of the fowl, and sentenced to serve from six months to two years in jail by Judge B. R. Jones.

Make radiator covers of cretonne covered over a burlap pad. They are inexpensive, add a gay note to the room, and save the walls and curtains from dirt.

DANDRUFF A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it. No matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

Plan Workhouse For Southeastern Section Of State

Would Be Combined With Industrial Farm Under Present Plans

(International News Service)
LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 9.—Erection of a workhouse and industrial farm, for joint use of southeastern Pennsylvania counties, has been proposed by District Attorney John P. Butt of Adams county, it was disclosed here, in an attempt to relieve crowded conditions in the prisons of the several counties.

District Attorney S. V. Hosterman of Lancaster county, who made known the intent of backers of the project, called attention to the fact that such joint institutions are authorized under an act of the Pennsylvania general assembly passed in 1917.

"That act," the district attorney said, "provides for division of the counties of the state into nine districts. The third district is composed of Adams, York, Lancaster, Cumberland, Dauphin, Perry, Northumberland and Lebanon counties."

Prisons in most of the counties of the district, it was said, are full and the joint industrial farm would be a boon to the section. Under the provisions of the legislative act, if all counties approve of the plan, one county commissioner from each will be appointed to a board to select a site for the institution and devise methods of financing it.

Original cost of the site and buildings and all overhead expenses would be shared by the counties in direct ratio to their population, Hosterman said. Cost of maintenance would be apportioned among counties as the proportion of inmates committed from each community dictates.

Under the statute permitting establishment of such joint penal institutions, products of the institution may be sold to the counties, shared or their sub-divisions and provision is made for employment of inmates while confined in the institutions.

Reciprocity Is Aim Of New Tariff Bill To Be Offered Soon

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—"Besides a liberal supply for all our food requirements, we have millions of bushels of wheat in store. Throughout history a nation with an ample reserve of bread grain has been deemed wealthy. Our vaults bulge with approximately half of the world's gold. We are the richest folk on earth if gold counts as riches. Our factories' output swamps our capacity as consumers. A country's ability to produce generously in proportion to its needs always has been regarded as a guaranty of its people's prosperity."

"And today," said Congressman Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, now in his second quarter-century as a member of the house of representatives' committee on way and means (that is to say, on taxation legislation), "we are suffering from desperately hard times."

"Concerning a super-opulent community in which, despite its aggregate super-opulence, we find a few individuals with an almost incredible plethora, a large majority only precariously well off and about 20 per cent very poor or actually destitute, only one conclusion is possible—the few have more than their fair share."

Aware that Representative Rainey had an extremely unfavorable opinion of the Hawley-Smoot tariff law, passed at the last session of congress, I had asked him to what extent (if any), in his judgment, it was responsible for the present depression.

"The responsibility rests more heavily," answered the taxation veteran, "upon the Fordney-McCumber act, which preceded it."

"The newer one, to be sure, even while it was under consideration, provoked a foreign government or two to reprisals against us. Otherwise it has not been long enough in effect to be greatly felt. Its part in the sequence of events will be to prevent our recovery."

Would the congressman recommend immediate tariff reduction to improve conditions? I questioned.

"It cannot be done abruptly," he responded.

"The old world peoples have adopted our own method to fight us; hence we ourselves must continue to rely on it until we can make terms with them."

"Due to the natural advantages we possessed our national rise, as a matter of fact, was amazing during the era of our government which culminated with our unprecedented profit-taking following the outbreak of the last war."

"All this time we had so noisily and persistently attributed our progress to our protective tariff policy that finally we appear to have convinced our overseas rivals that we were right, and of late they have been forcing their various lawmaking bodies to imitate us."

"The result," continued the Illinois legislator, "is that our export trade is dwindling toward the vanishing point."

"Our manufacturers, unable to sell American-made goods in these newly-protected countries' markets, have been driven to establish plants in the newly-protected countries. Ten billions in American money have gone into such investments since the war, and foreign workers have produced the goods which Americans ought to be making here."

"Our industrialists represent that they pay lower wages in the factories they operate abroad. The truth is that, reckoned in overseas purchasing power, the wages they must pay to foreigners are beginning somewhat to exceed those they pay in America—merely going to show that the shifting situation is shifting our workingmen's previously boasted higher standard of living to other fields of production."

"In brief, our protective policy is reacting completely against us."

"Yet if we resort to an unconsidered cut in our tariff rates," pointed out the Illinoisian, "we promptly will become a dumping ground for all these industries which our own money has been creating in Europe and other parts of the world."

"To meet the difficulty I plan to offer a bill, as I formulate its terms more fully, reducing American industrial tariffs to about the level of the Underwood act's, just antedating the Fordney-McCumber schedule, but making such reductions in our favor by countries wishing to take advantage of them."

"To embody the idea in a word—reciprocity!"

"Modification of our 'most favored' treaties," agreed the congressman, "will be a necessary preliminary to the establishment of reciprocal trade relationships between the United States and overseas peoples."

"Except for a few commodities, we ourselves produce an agricultural surplus, which we must sell abroad if possible."

"Attempts to protect exporters by means of import levies of course are futile or worse. It follows that all of our farm products of which we have a super-abundance should be placed on the free list."

"So much," said the mid-westerner, "for tariff reform."

"It remains to hasten a fairer division of our national wealth, accumulated and accumulating."

"A shorter working day and week—a five-hour day and a five-day week, at already existing wages, presently increasing—are urgently needed. Higher taxation of very large incomes and a much heavier rate of death levies, to break up our overgrown fortunes, are equally necessary."

"The commercial and industrial machinery evidently is badly out of order in any country which experiences business depression and widespread unemployment in the face of enormous riches. It not only calls for readjustment. It requires better future supervision to keep it running smoothly after emergency measures have coaxed it into some sort of a resumption of functioning."

Twenty-Eight False Alarms Received In Year By Department

Summary Of 1930 Reveals Interesting Data; Outside Calls Are Included

A record number of alarms answered by the New Castle Department of Fire during 1930 is reported in the department's annual report to Superintendent of Public Safety C. H. Reeves.

Statistics on the activity of the fire department during 1930 contain information that during the year there were 430 alarms answered. Of that number 28 were false. The approximate total fire loss sustained on both buildings and contents was $330,691.62.

Of the total loss approximately $120,721.86 was on buildings and about $209,369.76 was on contents destroyed by fire.

Of the total loss, the report states, $12,435.00 was uninsured.

During 1930 the New Castle Department of Fire answered 22 outside alarms as follows:

Union township, 8; Shenandoah township, 7; Newmarket township, 4; North Beaver township, 2; South New Castle borough, 1.

The report states that the approximate loss on fires answered by the department outside of the city was $24,647.26. That loss, however, would have been considerably increased but for the arrival of city apparatus, which is responsible for the saving of considerable property.

Of the record number of 430 alarms received during the year, 213 were received by telephone; 93 by street boxes; 124 were still. Twenty-eight of the alarms were false.

During the year the department employed the booster tank on B service truck to a considerable extent in place of chemicals. The fires during the past year were extinguished as follows:

By water, 143; chemical, 102; chemical and water, 32; heat out or removed, 62. No action was taken by the department on 89 fires. These were either grass fires or chimney fires which were permitted to burn out themselves.

Frame buildings led the list of places where fires originated, with a total of 179. The other kinds of buildings or places were divided as follows:

Brick, 66; cement block, 5; iron clad, 6 automobiles, 42; grass fires rubbish or fires outside of buildings, 102.

DATE SET FOR CLUB PLAYLET

Library Children Having Rehearsals For "Sleeping Beauty" To Be Given
Soon

Next Wednesday the little boys and girls of the library Blue Star club will meet with Miss Alice Joyce at the local library building, for another rehearsal of the playlet "Sleeping Beauty." The playlet will be presented on Wednesday, January 21 in the children's auditorium in the library basement.

Guests who will witness the play will be the members of the Blue Star Club.

A meeting of the club will be held previous to the rehearsal, this coming Wednesday.

Last Wednesday the members of the cast met for a rehearsal. Everything went fine and indications are that "Sleeping Beauty" will be a sure hit. Almost the entire cast was present for the practice. Several fairies and the handsome prince were missing, but they will probably be present at the next meeting. Miss Joyce played the part of the prince and several imaginary fairies filled in the other vacancies.

Children's Night Observed By P. H. C.

Special Holiday Program Is Presented; Treat Is Given
Children

While New Castle circle No. 5, Protected Home Circle, is noted for its many successful social events, one of the most important is perhaps the annual entertainment known for years as children's night and observed in hundreds of the circles throughout the organization. The entertainment held by No. 5 on Wednesday night with its many splendid features was voted the most successful affair of the kind ever held in the circle chamber and many justly earned compliments were paid Guardian Helen Ray and her splendid committee for the delightful manner in which the lengthy program was presented.

The lodge room in its Yuletide dress and brilliantly lighted tree was a beautiful feature of course and nothing but important business was transacted at the regular meeting.

At 8:30 o'clock the circle chamber was opened to the children and it was estimated that between 200 and 300 children and adults were present upon this happy occasion.

It is a matter of regret that the writer cannot make special mention of each number presented by the children, but it was children's night and each youngster was entitled to all the applause they received. A feature was the playlet, "An Old Fashioned Christmas Eve" with Winona Hill, Roberta Horcher, Myrtle Cox, Elsa Latimer, Laura Bacon, Lucille Hunter, Ruth McClafferty and Dorothy Latimer taking part.

Mrs. Hazel Hicks, circle pianist and assistant counselor of the junior circle, presided at the piano throughout the program and at its close in walked jolly old Santa Claus to the delight of all present. Now if any one wants to get in touch with Santa just look up David Sumner for he has the real goods. A splendid treat then was given the children and here Guardian Helen Ray sprung a surprise on her committee, Flora Cunningham, Alice Vogan, Nora McCann, Hildred Back, Hazel Hicks, Genevieve Drake, Kate Cowles, Mabel Tucker, Ida Patton, Lillie B. Jones, Belle Kennedy, David Tucker, Harry Mehlman, Roy Erwin and A. L. Cong, when they were called to the tree and Santa presented them with dainty Christmas gifts as a token of her appreciation of their cooperation for the "good of the order."

Erie Police Hunt For Holdup Pair

(International News Service)
ERIE, Jan. 9.—City police today redoubled their efforts to stamp out an incipient crime wave in this city as the result of two daring hold-ups late last night and early today which, although boldly executed, netted the thieves only a comparatively small sum.

Two men, described as being between 20 and 30 years old, entered the State restaurant at 911 Front street about midnight, covered Nick Pappas, proprietor, and four patrons with guns and escaped with $42.50 which they gleaned from the cash register.

A short time later the two men appeared at the automobile parking lot owned by Frank O'Hara and escaped with $8 after holding up the night attendant.

Mrs. Schiron entered the Rotunda home disguised as a Salvation Army worker and snatched up the baby when the mother was out of the room.

Office Workers Need A Counteracting Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING M. D.

Sedentary workers, confined to stuffy offices all day, sitting at a typewriter—girls more often than men, but not exclusively the prerogative of one sex—need a fruit and vegetable content to their diet to counteract such sedative habits.

The roughage diet is not exclusively a vegetable diet. Meat and fats should also be used to furnish easily available energy. But fruits and vegetables are the basis of it. They not only have residue, but their juices are slightly laxative. Applesauce used to be known at the Presbyterian hospital in Chicago as "Dr. Sippy's cathartic." Molasses and honey are both mild cathartics.

For stonic constipation the following high residue diet is used. It is too irritating the low residue diet described yesterday should be substituted.

Such foods as the following:
Soups: Stock soup with vegetables.
Vegetables: Spinach, peas, beans, corn, cauliflower, cabbage.
Cereals: Oats, mush, hominy, grits (cooked cereals with bran).
Breads: Bran, whole wheat, graham.

Fruits: Prunes, dates, figs, raisins, oranges, apples, berries with seeds, peaches, melons.
Fluids: Water in abundance, weak coffee, new cider, unfermented grape juice, buttermilk.

Cake: Ginger snaps, gingerbread.
Desserts: Fruit ices, date or fig pudding, agar-agar gelatin.
Miscellaneous: Marmalade, honey, molasses in moderate amounts, popcorn.

Remarks: Balance your meals, have variety each time, using meats, vegetables, fruits, etc., with each meal. Eat some fresh or cooked fruit every night before going to bed. Arrange your meals systematically and stick to your schedule. Regularity in meal time is one of the most important elements in treatment. It means educating your gastro-intestinal tract to receive stimuli regularly.

Drink plenty of water between meals. Drink two glasses of water (hot or cold) immediately on rising. Constipating foods are: Tea, cocoa, tapioca, cheese, sweet milk, eggs, salted fish, rich puddings, fried foods.

Before going to bed it is well to follow the old rule of eating an apple (from which undoubtedly comes the saying: "An apple a day keeps the doctor away") or some figs, canned pears, a dish of stewed prunes, stewed apricots or stewed raisins.

Editor's Note: Three pamphlets and three articles by Dr. Clendening can be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each pamphlet and 2 cents in coin for each article, with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding" and "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes." The articles are: "Normal Diet," "Diet of the Expectant Mother" and "Tuberculosis."

Beamish Will Get Appointment

Philadelphia Newspaperman To Get Place In Pinchot
Cabinet

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—Richard J. Beamish, Philadelphia political writer, will be the next secretary of the commonwealth.

Announcement that he is favorably considered for the appointment was made by Mayor Harry A. Mackey, Philadelphia, immediately after a conference with Governor-elect Pinchot. When Mayor Mackey said he was "considering the proposal."

The fact that Mackey made the announcement in Pinchot's presence was taken to mean that Beamish is certain of the post.

Mackey said he had made the trip to Harrisburg primarily to propose the Beamish appointment. Beamish, however, has long been a personal friend of the governor-elect. During the former Pinchot administration he was named to the public service commission but failed to obtain confirmation of the senate.

The Silent Years At Nazareth

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.—Luke 2:52.

By Dr. ALVIN E. BELL

This sole New Testament record of the 30 years between our Lord's infancy and his opening ministry has been aptly called "the solitary floweret out of the wonderful enclosed garden of the 30 years, plucked precisely there where the swollen bud at a distinctive crisis bursts into flower."

This gem which Luke has preserved gives us an invaluable insight into the perfectly normal experiences of the Boy Jesus. "And the child grew, and waxed strong, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon Him." "And Jesus advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and men." These two verses (40 and 52), like a golden frame, enclose the beautiful picture of the holy Child in the temple, amidst the teachers, in his twelfth year. Our interest lies in the fact that His physical development to this twelfth year was that of a normal child and youth. The unusual sights of Jerusalem at Passover so thrilled the lad from the quiet life of the obscure village of Nazareth that He could not pull himself away "when they had fulfilled the days," but "the Boy Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem." What would be more natural for a normal boy of twelve to do? His interest in things of His Father.

His mental development also followed perfectly normal lines: "Jesus advanced in wisdom," and that by the familiar route of the question mark. When after three days searching His mother and Joseph "found Him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the doctors, both hearing them and asking them questions," they looked in upon the most natural scene in the world, that of a child asking questions. Here was the chance of His young life to have the answers to the hundreds of questions He had brought unanswered from His humble Nazareth home and the added hundreds of questions that had been aroused by the strange Passover rites, which He may now have witnessed for the first time as He became "a son of the law" in His twelfth year. His hungry mind absorbed eagerly all that He could learn by listening and by questioning.

His questions, "How is it that ye sought me? Wist ye not that I must be in my Father's house?" is His first recorded utterance, and an expression of amazement that they should have searched for Him any place else than in the temple, the spot of His chief interest in all the world. The utterance indicates a dawning consciousness of His divine sonship with His Father in heaven, and of His messiahship. Yet despite this consciousness of His unique Sonship and of His earthly parents' inability to fully understand Him or His mission, we read: "And they understood not the saying which He spoke unto them. And He went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and He was subject unto them." What an example in filial obedience for boys and girls of all ages!

His Spiritual and Social Development

Not only within Himself physically and mentally did Jesus develop normally, but outwardly, as well, in His spiritual and social outreaches toward God and His fellowmen. "Jesus advanced in favor with God and men." His religious and social life were well balanced. His consciousness of a unique relation to God made of Him neither a recluse nor a snob. He was a Man among men, the "Son of Man" as well as "Son of God."

(The International Uniform Lesson for January 11 is Luke 2:40-52, the subject being, "The Childhood of Jesus," and the Golden Text, Luke 2:52, "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.")

Now Famous Decision By Jersey U. S. Judge Seen Headed For Doom

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The U. S. supreme court generally is mentioned by congressional wets, when discussing their favorite topic (the iniquities, as they regard them, of the eighteenth amendment and its offspring, the Volstead act), in a fashion plainly implying their view that it is a dry tribunal. They express this sentiment rather guardedly; one does not lightly impute prejudice to the supreme court. Nevertheless there is no mistaking their impression that it has deliberately given the "breaks" to prohibition in every decision it has handed down on the subject.

Hence wets on Capitol hill are not particularly enthusiastic over Federal Judge William Clark's recent ruling at Newark, N. J., holding the dry amendment never to have been validly ratified.

They feel sure the supreme bench presently will knock the Jersey jurist's opinion into a cocked hat.

THE DRYS, being equally sure of the same thing, are not excited either.

They do not, of course, concur with the wets in recognizing any bias on the part of the nine justices of the court of last resort. The supreme court justices simply are impartial and wise, according to the dry interpretation. While it is admitted that all their decisions thus far have been pro-dry, the dry explanation is that they had to be pro-dry in order to be right.

As to the net result of their conclusions, however, the wets and drys agree—

The supreme court is bone dry.

CONSIDERING the frequency of their split judgments on other cases, it is surprising how the justices have stuck together in the highly controversial question of prohibition.

They almost certainly are not all believers in the principle of it.

Though quoted after his death to an effect suggesting his conversion, the late Chief Justice Taft's earlier utterances were anything but dry.

Yet he was dry enough judicially. Justice Holmes is spoken of by close friends as a prohibition skeptic, but he has acquiesced in every one of the court's dry decisions.

Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Roberts, it is true, are of too recent appointment to have had any significant wet-and-dry issues presented to them in their time on the bench.

At most they would be but two voices against seven and wets have no serious hopes even of theirs.

Somewhat, regardless of its individual members' personal ideas, the U. S. supreme court, officially in session, seems solidly dry.

SHORTLY before he was de-bumazed by appointment to the supreme bench, I had an interview with the then Attorney General Harlan P. Stone, during which he touched on the subject of prohibition.

"We are engaged," he said, "in a great social experiment."

"It sounds a little like the Hoover reference to 'an experiment noble in purpose,' but there was no flub-dub about this remark of the attorney general's; he was talking practical law enforcement."

"Then, with much emphasis: 'And it is entitled to a fair chance.'"

I thought he had finished and got up. He hadn't quite finished, however.

"As to its final outcome," he said, "who knows?"

JUSTICE STONE is only one justice among the supreme court's nine, but occasionally I have wondered since then whether the prohibition philosophy he evidently took into its councils with him is not fairly representative of the entire court's—if the justices, all of them, wet and dry, have not simply made up their minds, quibbles and technicalities to the contrary notwithstanding, to give prohibition every possible chance for its white alley, as long as they believe it stands any chance whatever.

Otherwise it seems incredible that diverging as widely as some of them do, mentally and temperamentally, on far less disputations problems, they should concur so heartily and invariably as to every aspect of this one.

I also have wondered semi-occasionally, since he became a supreme justice, just what the then attorney general meant by his concluding remark—what policy he would consider in order if ever a time arrived when he felt that prohibition had HAD its chance and fizzled. I wish he had made that point clearer to me, because I would like to flatter myself that I know what at least one United States supreme justice's attitude really is on the wet-and-dry question.

That has been the remark of quite a number of local people who have seen the picture of the men who fought in that never-to-be-forgotten battle on Lake Erie, with Commander Oliver Hazard Perry. In the group is the picture of the man who so resembles Alderman O. H. P. Green, of Richelieu avenue, this city.

The resemblance is explained by the fact that the gentleman in the picture is a great-grandfather of Mr. Green of this city. Mr. Green, as his initials indicate, was named after the hero of the Lake Erie battle.

A souvenir valued by Alderman Green is a medal awarded to his military ancestor, for serving on Perry's ship.

Crawford Man Sues For School Tuition

MEADVILLE, Pa., Jan. 9.—In a tuition case believed to be without a precedent in Pennsylvania, Judge O. Clare Kent yesterday upheld the Fairfield township school directors. Fairfield has no high school and the directors pay the tuition fees of township children. They instructed a daughter of Philip Szarinskyk to attend the Cochran high school, Szarinskyk, residing 10 miles from Meadville and five from Cochran sued the directors for the tuition fee claiming Meadville was more convenient.

Stuppach Madonna To Be Returned

(International News Service)
STUTTGART, Jan. 9.—The famous Stuppach Madonna, painted by Matthias Grunewald, which has been kept in the Stuttgart Palace Museum for some time, is to be brought back to Stuppach, a small village near Mergentheim, where a fire-proof chapel is being built to house it. Floors, walls and roof are heavily armored, and special attention has been paid to ventilation and to preventing dampness, the great foe of paintings.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

By Central Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—A radical friend of mine inherited $7,000 the other day, from his brother.

The minute the Worthy Brother got his hands on the dough he stepped down off the Soap Box and began to make cold, unfeeling remarks about people who stir up class hatred.

PROPHETS SOMETIMES ERR
Looking back in newspaper files a year ago, it is interesting to note the cheerful opinions and prognostications with which the first stanza of 1930 was greeted.

The Experts all seemed to be in agreement that 1930's November had swept away all "deflations".

The last drop of water had been wrung from the last, lonely security, and 1930 would be a "banner year".

Reminds me of Bill Nye's description of his early days in the newspaper business.

"I used to write up things that never happened," he said, "with a virile and trenchant pen. Later, when they occurred, I was happy. If they failed to come to pass, I bowed to the inevitable, and smothered my chagrin."

The meanest man on earth is the chap who steps into a revolving door behind you, and lets you do all the pushing.

EVERY MAN TO HIS TRADE
Doc Dalrymple got into an argument with his landlord and for two months refused to pay the rent of his apartment. The landlord served him with a summons and the Doc consulted a lawyer.

"You got to pay your landlord," said the Blackstone Brother, "but you can annoy him before you kick in with the dough."

"How can I annoy him?"

"We'll answer his complaint by filing suit," said the barrister, "alleging that negligence on his part, in the conduct of your apartment house, has caused you extreme mental anguish."

When the Doc read the complaint in his suit against the landlord, he burst into tears.

He had trusted that landlord, it seems, as no man ever trusted another human being.

Into the landlord's keeping the Doc had placed faith in mankind, his belief in everything noble and clean and sweet, both in this life and the next. And the landlord, vile miscreant, had chosen to disregard that pathetic surrender—had, in fact, violated every ounce and shred of the Doc's childlike faith and confidence wherefore, the Doc "prayed" that he be awarded the sum of $308.74—the exact amount of the rent he owed.

His anguish matched the rent to the penny.

A man's opinions of the law, says the Doc, depends largely upon the kind of lawyer he knows best.

LONG PAST DAYS
Eddie Robinson, the poet, laments the passing of the town's fine old resorts—where inspiration, soaring song, and camaraderie was a sacred thing.

Robinson speaks of them, reverently, as "clearing houses of the spirit."

Miss Evelyn Robinson of New Castle spent several days with her sister Mrs. Jay Cotton.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Cotton and family were in New Castle Saturday.

Indian Head Pennies Only Worth One Cent

Director Of U. S. Mint States That Indian Heads Are Not Being Called
In

NO PREMIUM ON OLD COPPER COINS

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
(Special Washington Correspondent
Of The New Castle News)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 9.—
Optimistic residents of New Castle who are inclined to believe everything they hear may just as well stop hoarding their Indian pennies at once and put them in circulation in exchange for chewing gum and newspapers, because according to the treasury department's latest statement the intrinsic and extrinsic value of the Indian head remains precisely where it has always been—at one cent, no more, no less.

The office of the director of the mint over in the treasury department declares that somehow, somewhere in the country, there has arisen the notion that the department is about to call in all Indian pennies now afloat and in return pay sums of the public money all out of proportion to the face value of the coins.

The director of the mint adds with much feeling that the rumor, despite the mere technicality that "there is nothing to it," has traveled the country over with such completeness that today the more credulous elements of the entire population are under its spell. As a result, the director has been flooded with requests for information as to the market value of the Indian head and also as to the big day when the redemption of the old coins is supposed to take place.

In short, the optimistic rumor seems unstoppable. But in a similarly optimistic vein, the director of the mint in sheer self-defense and in the interest of truth wishes it to be noised abroad that despite the fact that the Indian cent has not been minted since 1909, it is as rare as a snowflake in Alaska. There are millions of them in circulation, he says, but the rumor continues in circulation as well.

Cops Go For Men
Muscling In On Apple Trade Here

McKEESPORT, Pa., Jan. 9.—
Apple sellers are being asked by police today to produce their permits from Mayor Lysle today following reports that out-siders have been "muscling in" on the trade.

The orders were given police by Chief John J. Whalen following complaints of the Family Welfare association which has been investigating and recommending unemployed men as apple sellers.

After securing recommendations from the association and a permit from the mayor, the sellers are provided with apples at cost price by the Austin Electric shop. Chief Whalen promised that the imposters would be off the streets in a short time.

Reception Held At College Last Night

ing room where a luncheon was served. Music and vocal numbers

The new reductions average 11%—some sizes are reduced 19%. And you save even more than that when you buy a pair.
Raw rubber and cotton have come down. And new economies in manufacturing and distributing have been effected as a result of the fact that one out of every ten tires sold for replacement in 1930 was an ALLSTATE. So Sears passed these savings along to motorists by making the ALLSTATE a better tire than ever—and offering it for less than ever.

House Connection Ordinance Submitted

White Suggests Bill Which Council Has Tresser Present Today

Council today adopted the suggestion of City Solicitor Robert White and authorized Councilman Stanley Tresser to introduce an ordinance relative to installation of house connections during paving jobs here.

Under the proposed ordinance which went to committee, the contractor will include in his bid the price for installing house connections in connection with the paving.

White explained that the system now in vogue is poor and as a result the city may not be able to collect on liens because the engineer's department served notices to install connections on the wrong lots.

He suggested that this duty be included as one connected with his office and as a result he can look up titles and then with proper service on the notices the city can collect them.

The only way that persons would be allowed to escape from having house connections for sanitary sewers installed would be by making written request and then opening of the paved section would be prohibited for years.

Famous Trail Being Finished

Appalachian Trail Through Pennsylvania Will Soon Be Ready For Hikers

By HAROLD E. MYERS
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—Selected for its adaptability to recreational use, particularly that of the hiker, the famous "Appalachian Trail," extending from Maine to Georgia and traversing the entire state of Pennsylvania, is rapidly nearing completion.

The greater portion of the trail through the state is now marked, and with steps taken recently for blazing of the route through southern Pennsylvania and northern Maryland, one of the last links in the route will be completed.

The last stretch added to the trail in this state was through the Mont Alto and Micaux state forests, where 31 miles were cleared and marked, springs cleaned out and rest shelters set up for hikers.

Working with similar organizations in neighboring states, the Appalachian Trail Club have formulated plans for finishing up the remaining work early this year and by summer it is expected the entire route will be well-marked as far as Washington, D. C.

Development of the trail, which follows the crest of the Appalachians, in southern Pennsylvania was delayed for some time because of indecision as to whether it should be laid over North or South Mountain. The latter route was finally selected, to afford direct communication with a section of the trail marked by the Potomac Appalachian Club from Harper's Ferry through to Shenandoah National Park.

Development of the trail has been endorsed by the state department of Forests and Waters and the route on the mountains of southern Pennsylvania was suggested by T. O. Bradley, district forester of Mont Alto, and J. R. Williams, district forester of the Micaux Forest.

Existence of a well-marked, continuous hiking trail through many hitherto unpenetrated regions is expected to result in a substantial increase in utilization of the recreational features of the state forests, according to enthusiasts in the movement.

Beside marking the route of the trail, it has been measured accurately with a cyclometer on a measuring wheel. When completed, directions will be available for nearly 1500 miles of continuous hiking trail from Maine to Georgia.

Preparations are now being made to have workers in the mountains as soon as weather permits, to finish up the work of routing it. Much of the trail now being marked and mapped is inaccessible except under extremely favorable weather conditions.

State foresters in many states through which the trail passes are acting as guides for hikers traversing it.

Papers Comment On Encyclical

London Daily Express Says
"Pope's Message Is Like Simple Sermon"

(International News Service)

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Pope Pius XI's encyclical on marriage, issued yesterday and scathingly condemning modern marital views and practice, was generally regarded by London newspapers today as a sharp rejoinder to recent views on birth control reached by the Lambeth bishops' conference held here.

Resolutions adopted by that body conceded that birth control was admissible under certain circumstances, while the pontiff's encyclical unconditionally outlawed it along with divorce and other new conceptions.

The London Daily Express, pointing out that the 16,000-word document was remarkable for its lucidity and precision, concluded: "When the Pope speaks it is like a simple priest addressing himself to his congregation."

The Farm Board hasn't yet done its utmost. It hasn't yet tried prayer.

Three Accused Of Recent Robberies

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Jan. 9.—With John Davidek, 22, of 25 Simpson street, Hartford, Conn.; Nicholas Ornifer, 21, of Tridelfia, W. Va., and Chester Pior, 18, of West Kensington, in jail, Chief of Police Charles Renner, expects to clear up 15 robberies and pocket-picking cases in this district during the past two months. Loot will total over $3,000, Renner said last night.

Davidek and Ornifer, arrested in the attic of John Pior's home, are charged with robbery, and the elder Pior's son, Chester, is accused of receiving stolen goods. Renner said the Pior boy was wearing clothes taken in the robberies.

Bankers Rescue Dog From River

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 9.—Three hundred persons yesterday watched the rescue of a poodle pup from the Shenango river by Frank C. Shively, cashier and William Bryer, assistant cashier, of the First National Bank, which faces on the river. Shively lassoed the animal from the State street bridge and Bryer succeeded in pulling the dog from the whirlpool at one of the bridge supports into which it had fallen in attempting to cross the stream on the ice.

Event At His Home In
New Concord, Ohio

JOHN GEALEY GLENN

Many friends and relatives of John Gealey Glenn, Civil war veteran, who was born in what is now a part of Lawrence county, will be interested in learning of the fact that on January 4, he observed the 91st anniversary of his birth at his home in New Concord, O., where he has been making his home for the past five years with his daughter Mrs. Margaret Houk.

He enlisted in the One Hundredth (Roundhead) Pennsylvania Volunteer infantry in 1861 and was discharged from the service August 27, 1864. He was detailed to bring the body of a brother from Petersburg and had to go to Lincoln's headquarters to get permission. He also served as a corporal in an Ambulance corps and since the Civil War has been commander of the G. A. R. Posts at Portersville and Slippery Rock, Pa.

He was one of eleven children born to Archie and Susan Christy Glenn and he and Andrew Glenn of Plaingrove are the survivors of this group. He was married in 1869 to Mary Ann Brennan and six sons and three daughters were born to this union. His wife and three sons are deceased.

On going to New Concord, he met his cousin Dr. J. J. Sharp, also a veteran, who has since died.

Dog Trained By State Troopers

(International News Service)

The dog is one of those trained recently by state police and Eastern penitentiary attaches at Gratersford. It obeys only its master, and only commands spoken in French.

NOTES OF TROOP "F" 103RD CAVALRY OF NEW CASTLE

The following took part in indoor rifle practice Thursday evening: Sergeants Pollock, Stewart; Privates John, Billig, Trax.

Indoor drill at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The drill will include practical preparation for the next federal inspection which is expected to take place on February 16. A strong attendance is desired by the commander.

Troop Clerk Earl Miller, who is responsible for most of these notes, has just purchased a pair of riding boots that were inspected and approved by several present in the armory Thursday night.

Nobody supposes Prince George fell off that horse intentionally, but it does look as if he was stealing his brother's stuff.—The Worcester Evening Gazette.

ROAMING

With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Roaming up along the Narrows these days it's difficult to get through. Workmen are scattered along the road for two hundred yards, all of them tearing away at the young mountain which has been responsible for the narrow roadway for many years.

It won't be long however until the roadway will be wide enough to permit motor traffic up to the Paper Mill dam without thought of accident, and next summer you can really appreciate one of the beauty spots of Lawrence county.

Talking to a citizen yesterday who is interested in the beautification of the city. For years he has argued that the Narrows road should be widened and some attention paid to this glen of beauty. "The cost would be small and the returns large" was his argument, and now his ideas are being carried out.

"The Narrows is not the only spot that should be improved" said he. "Gaston Park is another place that would pay big dividends in civic satisfaction. No better spot can be found than the old woods, and with a few dollars wisely expended, the city would have a park that other cities would be glad to pay a fortune for."

Perhaps some of these days the city will improve Gaston Park to the point it should be. It is a little out of the way from the center of town, but once out there you feel that the town is a thousand miles away.

The appointment of Richard J. Beamish to the post of Secretary of the Commonwealth is of more interest to glee singers here than they might first imagine. For many years the New Castle Glee Club has been singing "The Crusaders." The Apollo Club used it extensively when the club was in existence. The Richard J. Beamish whose name appears as the composer of the words of this number is the same Richard J. Beamish who has just been appointed Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Some of the boys have been complaining lately about the trucks hauling slag up the Mount Jackson hill. Seems that water seeps down through the slag and leaves a wet trail up the middle of the hill, which very soon turns into ice. And I don't know anything this column can do about it, but anyway there it is.

Apropos of nothing at all in particular, somebody asked today what had become of the old fashioned dog catcher? Whether the position had been abolished by law, or whether nobody would take it any more. Anyway there hasn't been a dog catcher for a long time, and now folks want to know if there is such a position under the scheme of things in the city.

Back in the days when bare feet were considered the proper dress for summer, Jack Young was the dog catcher. Perhaps you remember him. A powerful fellow, given to boxing at times, and known for his "Pomp Handle Poonch." Between bouts he was the dog catcher and by virtue of his office, the enemy of every kid in town.

Maybe that's the reason we don't have such an official now, the odium attached to it is too much for the average fellow. Executioners don't have many friends, we've been told, and dog catchers are about in the same category.

And one thing we could never understand about it was this. Why was it that a dog without tag and muzzle in the summer months was fair game for the dog catcher, but the city would be infested with a couple thousand cats and nothing done about it. It always seemed an injustice, back in those days when dodging Jack Young was a major sport, and I'll be jiggered if I've changed my mind any yet.

Voting Machines Put In Storage

Mercer County Election Machinery Is Properly Stored Awaiting Use

MERCER, Pa., Jan. 9.—County custodian of the voting machines Peter Whalen reports that the 40 machines bought by the county in 1930 to be properly stored waiting the next primary of September.

The demonstration machine in the office of the commissioners will be taken to Hemphill township.

It is said that other county districts will vote on this subject in 1931. Under the law if sufficient signers are secured the question can be put to vote in any voting district and if the result is favorable the commissioners have no choice but to install.

FAVOR CHANGE

Both Assemblymen R. W. McKay and Rev. H. N. Stevenson favor a change in the present public service commission providing that the change be of such equitable nature that it will insure fair dealing between people and utilities.

The big majority given Pinchot in this county is said by foes of the present commission to be the result of his campaign against them.

Jail Prisoners Double In Year

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 9.—Commitments to Butler county jail for 1930 were nearly double the number for 1929, according to the statement made yesterday to the county commissioners by Sheriff Lawrence Thompson. The sheriff received 1,229 persons in the jail last year and for the preceding year, 653 were committed. The sheriff served 26,295 meals during 1930. Only four prisoners were sentenced to Western penitentiary in 1930, with the number 12 for 1929. In 1929 66 persons were taken to the Allegheny county workhouse and 89 were committed by the Butler county court to this institution in 1930. Butler county paid $8,134.94 for maintenance of the jail in 1930.

Lingle Slaying Facts Revealed

Leo Brothers, Actual Slaying
Paid $600 For Job By Gangsters

MORAN-AIELLO
ARE IMPLICATED

By FRED GOODFELLOW
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Further details of the death plot which resulted in the killing of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter and the arduous pursuit and capture of Leo Brothers, St. Louis gunman, named as Lingle's slayer, were revealed today from an exclusive source.

Following was the outstanding information obtained:

1. Brothers got $600 for killing Lingle.

2. Every effort is being made by the "board of strategy" to build up a case which will stand in court against George "Bugs" Moran and Julian "Potatoes" Kaufman, the surviving members of the inner gangland ring which planned the assassination of Lingle.

3. Lingle met his death because he was unable to pay back to Jack Zuta, the vice monger, since slain by avenging gunmen, $25,000 which had been advanced him as "expense money" to grease the way for opening of dog racing.

4. Associated in the murder plot with Moran and Kaufman were Zuta, Joe Aiello, co-leader of the north side gang, and Pasquale "Pat" Tardi, who acted as go-between with Brothers. All three have followed Lingle in death, shot down because of their part in the conspiracy.

Lingle, because of his position as a newspaper man and his ability to get in where hoodlums could not appear, had undertaken to guarantee dog racing at the Chicago stadium, it should be stated that neither the present nor the former owners and operators of the stadium had any connection with the plan. The racing corporation was to take over the building on a lease.

Jack Zuta, Bugs Moran and Joe Aiello were the secret three behind the racing corporation.

Boy Scout News

Winners to Celebrate
A "whoopie party" to celebrate the winning of the high per cent council trophy in the three-months troop efficiency contest which ended December 31, was planned for at the meeting of the troop 15 membership in the First Christian church this week. No date was set. With almost a 100 per cent attendance the meeting was the best conducted of late. H. C. Warner was a guest, as well as a number of prospective Scouts.

The program, featured by patrol stunts, a safety problem by the pine tree patrol, a humorous boxing stunt by the silver foxes and an artificial respiration stunt by the rattlesnake patrol was probably the best to be given. Several games and instruction in first aid and pathfinding also featured. Scoutmaster Sid Smith and his assistants had charge.

Boys of the pine tree patrol were guests of Dr. T. J. McFate, deputy commissioner, this week. He told the boys considerable about X-ray work, discussing it in a most interesting way. The occasion was in honor of the patrol's winning honors in a recent contest.

Suggests Paying South For Slaves Freed Years Ago

Rep. Green, Florida, Has Bill Before Congress To Pay South Big Sum

PLANS CAMPAIGN FOR ENACTMENT

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—A campaign will be launched for passage of his bill to compensate slave owners and descendants for the value of slaves freed by Lincoln's emancipation proclamation, Rep. R. A. Green (R) of Florida announced today.

The first step, he said, would be to request the house judiciary committee for a hearing on the measure.

"The theory of the bill is that slaves were personal property under the law, and their value was confiscated as a war measure, and the government is liable for reimbursement," said Green.

"The freeing of the slaves without compensation ruined the south; it is still true today."

Four Billion Dollars. "The slaves were valued at four billions of dollars—probably half the wealth of the south. Northern money was invested in more diverse channels, but the slaves were valued more than land in the south, and the south never has been able to recover."

Green's bill would allow suit to be brought against the government. Reced of ownership of property half the slaves could be established, and under the government practice of whitening old claims, the maximum cost probably would be a billion dollars, he said.

Another proposal which Green classed as "radical" will be made by him in the near future, he promised.

It will be a bill for appointment of a commission to consider the advisability of setting apart territory within or without the United States for the sole occupation by negroes.

Dr. E. S. Cooper Is Sentenced

Federal Court Gives Six Months Jail Sentence On Narcotics Charge

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Jan. 9.—Dr. Edwin S. Cooper, of New Castle, found guilty in federal court of violating the Harrison Narcotic Act, today was sentenced to serve six months in the Lawrence county jail by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

Attaches at the United States marshal's office here said no effort was being made to secure a new trial for the aged physician and that he would be remanded to the Lawrence county jail today. Dr. Cooper, accompanied by Harry Link, of Pittsburgh, his attorney, heard the sentence pronounced in court shortly after noon.

Attorney Zeno Fritz, prosecuting the case for the government, secured a jury trial conviction last November 27 after he introduced numerous witnesses to show that the defendant had issued prescriptions for morphine tablets without proper medical examinations.

Chief witness for the commonwealth was Mrs. Pearl Dando, of Youngstown, who testified that the doctor had issued 56 prescriptions to her and her husband under various names without proper medical examination. The prescriptions were later altered in order to secure increased amounts of the morphine tablets.

Government agents also testified at the trial that they made purchases at the physician's New Castle office of various amounts of illegal drugs without proper physical examination.

Dr. Cooper, aged 55, testified at the trial that he had issued the prescriptions in good faith and in the regular course of his practice.

INCREASE EXPECTED IN HOME BUILDING

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The annual building survey of the Copper and Brass Research Association, published today, says that expenditures for building construction in 1931 for the United States as a whole should approximate $4,000,000,000.

"It is reasonable to suppose," the survey says, "that in 1931 residential building will improve over the 1929 total, which was the lowest since 1921," but the association forecasts a decrease in all other classes of building with the total for 1931 somewhat above that for 1929.

Building last year fell about 30 per cent below the 1929 figure, which in turn was below the average of the previous five years, the survey points out.

HIGHLIGHTS OF HISTORY

By J. Carroll Mansfield

53. George Rogers Clark—The Close Of Clark's Military Career

IN 1786 CLARK WAS APPOINTED INDIAN COMMISSIONER BY CONGRESS. IN 1787 HE CONCLUDED A TREATY WITH THE SHAWNEES BY WHICH THAT TRIBE AGREED TO MOVE FURTHER WEST, THUS OPENING A LARGE PART OF OHIO TO WHITE SETTLERS.

THE SAME YEAR CLARK WAS PERSUADED TO LEAD A VOLUNTEER EXPEDITION AGAINST THE WABASH TRIBES THAT WERE ON THE WARRATH AND THREATENING VINCENNES. ALMOST WITHIN STRIKING DISTANCE OF THE HOSTILES MOST OF THE VOLUNTEERS MUTINIED, BECAUSE THE RATIONS GAVE OUT, AND RETURNED HOME.

AT VINCENNES CLARK TO FEED HIS REMAINING MEN WAS OBLIGED TO IMPRESS PROVISIONS IN THE TOWN, INCLUDING SOME BELONGING TO A SPANISH TRADER. ONE OF CLARK'S PERSONAL ENEMIES HASTENED TO GOVERNOR RANDOLPH OF VIRGINIA WITH A PRE-POSTEROUS TALE THAT CLARK WAS ROBBING SPANISH TRADERS AND SECRETLY PREPARING TO MAKE A RAID ON THE SPANISH IN LOUISIANA.

LED TO BELIEVE THIS REPORT TRUE AND FEARFUL THAT CLARK'S "CRIME" MIGHT JEOPARDIZE THE COMMERCIAL TREATY FOR WHICH THE UNITED STATES WAS THEN NEGOTIATING WITH SPAIN, OR EVEN LEAD TO WAR, THE GOVERNOR HURRIEDLY DISAVOWED THE ALLEGED ACT AND PROCLAIMED CLARK A MALEFACTOR.

HUMILIATED AND ENRAGED BY THIS PUBLIC DISGRACE, CLARK AT ONCE RETIRED FROM PUBLIC LIFE. BITTER, BANKRUPT AND IN FAILING HEALTH, HE PLANNED TO MIGRATE WITH SOME OF HIS FRIENDS INTO SPANISH LOUISIANA IN THE HOPE OF BEING FREED OF THE STATE DEBTS HE HAD ASSUMED, BUT GAVE UP THE IDEA. FOR 15 YEARS THE RUINED GENERAL LIVED WITH RELATIVES IN KENTUCKY, DEPENDENT ON THEIR CHARITY.

THE QUESTION BOX

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

What is the meaning of the word "gerrymander"? When was it first used?
Gerrymander is a word belonging to the political vocabulary of the United States, and is used to denote an unfair division of the electoral districts in a state made in the interest of one of the political parties. The expression was coined in 1812 when the Federalist and Republican parties in Massachusetts were nearly evenly balanced in numerical strength, but the Republicans took advantage of a temporary majority in the legislature to divide the state into new senatorial districts in such a manner that those sections which gave a large number of Federalist votes might be brought into one district. Elbridge Gerry was at that time Governor of Massachusetts, and through his signature the work of the legislature became a law, although he seems not to have wholly approved the measure. The form of one of the districts into which Essex county was divided was so shaped like that of a monstrous animal, and when someone suggested that it looked like a salamander, the name "gerrymander" was given to it instead. Since that time, the expression has been applied to the practice of unfairly dividing a state in favor of one political party.

Was wholesale punishment ever meted out in the armies of ancient Rome, and if so, what was the method called?
The method by which punishment was sometimes inflicted in the armies of ancient Rome was called decimation. In an instance where crime had been committed by soldiers en masse, which would merit death in the individual, one-tenth of the whole number would be put to death. The individuals were selected by lot.

What was the Lecompton Constitution?
The Lecompton Constitution was a form of government for the state of Kansas (then a territory) adopted by a convention of dispute legalists, held at Lecompton, Kas., October-November, 1857. The Lecompton Constitution declared the right of slave-holders in Kansas to their slaves to be inviolable, prohibited the legislature from passing any act of emancipation, and forbade any amendment of the instrument before 1861. This constitution was rejected by the people of Kansas and in 1859 an anti-slavery constitution was framed and the state was admitted to the Union Jan. 29, 1861.

On what date did Easter Sunday fall in the year 1856?
In 1856 Easter fell on March 23.

Where was the mythical Fountain of Youth situated?
Such fountains are a part of the mythology of many lands. In the Middle Ages a fountain of youth was supposed to exist in an island or region called Bimini and was sought by Ponce de Leon, De Soto and other Spanish explorers.

County Federation Of Women's Clubs

A spoken expression that hung on the air for just a moment of time as thousands of club women in their homes listened in while Mrs. Sipe, General Federation President, was giving her address some months ago in Denver, Colorado, was of such significance that its echo is still resounding to those who caught its import and have since been weighing it against facts.
She was speaking of the work of federated clubs of which there were 14,500 at that time and she made this statement:—"We are pioneers in serving human needs rather than political or commercial needs."
A definite statement that rolls out on the horizon the whole panorama of political and commercial activities of the past ages, hectic, sordid, bitter, war-engendering yet, withal, quite efficient in legal and financial gains; while to the front stands all humanity with the same crying needs that have been carried all the way.
Organized womanhood faced these two fields and made their choice of service. Facing human needs they have definitely turned their backs on political and commercial needs and have elected to serve the greater. We are pioneers in making such a choice to tasks in the further development of our nation.
To study the program and the far-reaching plans of the Federation but confirms the fact that this choice has been made and that we are well on the way to finding and establishing means to meet these needs.
To study the workings of the different departments of the Federation is to find women busy everywhere urging the passage or amendment of laws that bring justice, mercy, inspiration to all including women, children, the criminal and the unfit, mentally and physically, helping in a practical way, in the making of Braille books and selling of their handicraft and sponsoring of entertainment for them, the many who are blind, leading in all welfare movements and making a definite study of the child's need in its education; recognizing the value of the home and projecting efforts to bring it back to a commanding influence in building the life of the nation; urging adult education for our women, discerning as an attractive art the economic management of a home and making domestic science an alluring study; planting beauty by the wayside and preserving the wondrous gifts of nature; in many ways creating higher standards of ethics in community life.
3,000,000 federated club women, with many other organized women who are working with them hand in hand, are busy transforming their influence and their untiring efforts into a great power in civic life, through serving human needs.

NEW CASTLE QUINTET MEETS MARS TONIGHT

Local High School Passers In Quest Of Second League Victory At Mars, Pa.

SMALL FLOOR MAY PROVE HANDICAP

Having made a successful start in Section Three of the W. P. I. A. L. league by defeating Zelenople High, 48-18, the New Castle high school undefeated basketball team will try to continue to keep the rapid pace which it has set so far this season, when the local passers travel to Mars, where they will meet Mars High tonight in the second sectional battle. The game will start at eight o'clock.

Due to an unusually small floor, New Castle may have trouble getting started and is apt to have a difficult time defeating the Mars cagers. The floor at Mars is very small and proves somewhat of a handicap to the visiting team. Last season Mars put up one of the hardest battles the locals had, at Mars, New Castle was fortunate to win 18-17. The same situation might arise tonight.

According to dope, Mars has a fair team this season. Ellwood City defeated this team last Tuesday in the first game of the season. Mars expects to present a strong lineup in hope of stopping the onward rush of the Coach Bridenbaugh machine. New Castle concluded its training in preparation for this contest on Thursday afternoon. The local boys are raring to go and eager to annex the seventh victory of the present floor campaign. The local lineup will likely consist of N. Uram and Regis McAuley at guards, Andy Lasky at center, and Luther Rowe, and Francis Walimo at forwards.

The local hardwood artists leave early this afternoon by automobile for the battle scene.

Returns to Mound

Bob Shawkey, manager of the New York Yankees last season, will return to the mound for the 1931 International league campaign. Bob the Gob has signed with Jersey City as a coach and will also act as relief pitcher.

GETS AUTO LICENSE
SAME AS CLASS NAME

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 9.—John Q. Tilson, Republican floor leader in congress, has procured a Connecticut license plate bearing the number Y-91, thus indicating the year of his graduation of Yale. The letter Y is one of many used to designate auto registered here. Congressman Tilson's plate recalls the plate of a distinguished Yale official who some years ago applied for a plate with the number Y-1898 because he was graduated in that year. His class was having a reunion when his number plates were delivered to his chauffeur who installed the plates and drove the car to a Yale building. The number thereon was perfect: Y1898, but the plates were in orange and black, Princeton's colors.

St. Mary's-Manhattans Will Battle Tonight

Strong Ellwood City Team Of Allegheny County League Will Be Here Tonight

Game Starts At 8 O'Clock—Saints Hope To Avenge Defeat At Ellwood City

Tonight at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's auditorium, the New Castle fans are going to get a peek at this Manhattan team of Ellwood City, members of the Allegheny County league. The Manhattans oppose the St. Mary's team. The auditorium is located at the corner of North Beaver and North streets.

The first meeting of these two teams this year resulted in a victory for the Manhattans, and the Saints have been hankering ever since for a chance to get the Ellwoodians on the local court. Through their energetic business manager Jokey Travers, the Saints were accommodated with the Manhattans appearing here this evening, and all set to show the local leather flingers the art of flinging leather like it should be flung.

Have Many Stars
In the Manhattan lineup is found the names of many stellar ex-high and ex-college stars, such as "Lefty" Friedman, Todd Lloyd, Kenny Delahunty, Lattiano, Fitzgerald, Leyda, and others, and they are good. The other night the powerful Charleroi team of the Allegheny County league found the Manhattans pretty tough stuff.

Father Nee of the St. Mary's team will have his strongest lineup available for tonight with Russ Hannon and Johnny Hill looking after the business of getting baskets from the forward posts, Bruce Alexander will be at the jump-off spot and Steve Voiesko and Uhle will take care of the guard posts, which assures the Saints of a crackerjack lineup and it would not be surprising if the invaders find the locals just a wee bit too good for them on the home floor tonight.

Despite several losses the Saints are pushing right to the front in the basketball world and have played the best teams in the district. Their first victory of the year was at the expense of the Temple Israel team, that strong group of Church League stars.

The Saints are going after their second victory of the season tonight and they are playing an "A-number-1" club too!

Carnegie Trims East Siders, 54-8

Outclassing their opponents completely, the Carnegie Five walloped the East Side Juniors on Thursday evening at the Carnegie auditorium by a 54-8 score.

In the preliminary game the Safety Five defeated the Alumni by a 27-17 count. Previous to this contest the Alumni held a verdict over the Safeties. On Wednesday night the Carnegie Five won a forfeit contest from Coalton who failed to show up for a scheduled game.

The summary:—
Carnegie Five 54 East Side Jrs. 8
Gallagher F Longacre
LaRocco F Vaughn
Vigali C Mack
Campbell G A. Dely
Ross G Dean
Field Goals—Vigali 9, Gallagher 7, Campbell 6, LaRocco 2, Longacre, Fouls—Carnegie, 6 out of 12; East Side, 6 out of 12. Referee—Venditto. Timer—Falesco. Scorer—Rocco Viggiano.

Stove League Gossip

The Boston Red Sox are first at last. The crimson-hosed ball club is the first major league outfit to publish its roster for the 1931 campaign.

Vernon Gomez, the kid hurler who looked so good while with the Yankees part of last season, will get another chance to catch on with the New Yorks. Gomez, you remember, is a southpaw.

Gomez's chief fault last season was that he put the ball too square over the plate. His fast one was meat for many American league hitters.

Connie Mack says he expects Rube Walberg to return to his 1929 form. If the Rube does the A's will be tougher than ever since Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw are expected to continue their brilliant mound work.

The three men around which the Cleveland Indians built their 1931 hopes are Wesley Ferrell, pitcher; Eddie Morgan, first baseman, and Johnny Hodapp, second sacker.

Geneva Beats Gettysburg; Slippery Rock Teachers Defeat St. Francis

There were some fine floor games played in the tri-state district last night with Allegheny defeating West Virginia, Duquesne upsetting Thiel, Geneva duffing off Gettysburg and Slippery Rock Teachers beating St. Francis.

The Allegheny Alligators, playing at Morgantown, showed a fast attack in subduing the Mountaineers 35 to 29, with Massing, Dennison and Garbark leading the way. Slippery Rock had little trouble in beating St. Francis on the Slippery Rock floor, 23 to 15. It was the first game of the year for the Teachers and they looked mighty good. Nash was the big gun with seven baskets.

Geneva on a trip east defeated Gettysburg 47 to 33. Fair, Aultman and Montgomery accounted for the most of the Geneva points. The Dukes, led by Brud Stephens, who caged six baskets, upset the fast Thiel team 35 to 31 in a game played on the bluff floor at Pittsburgh. The Lutherans gave the veteran Dukes a stiff battle.

Sammy Gray, Browns' Mound Star, Expects To Do "Comeback"

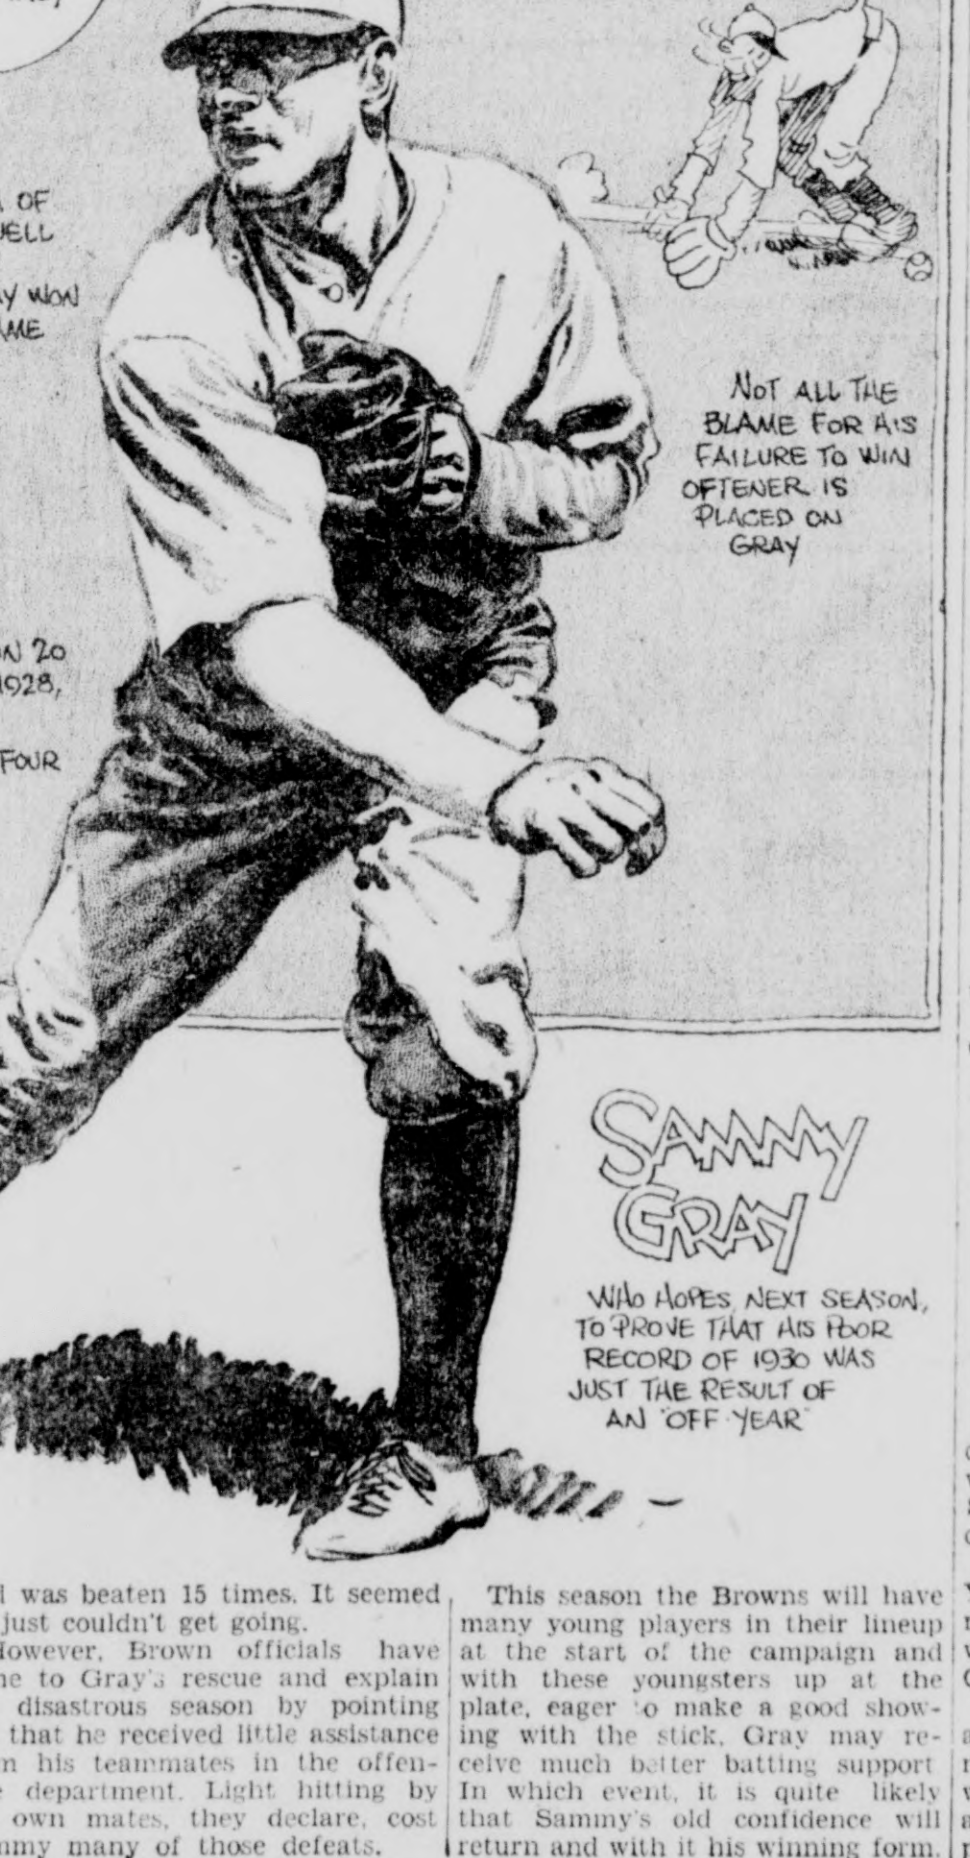

—By Jack Sords

IT'S FASTER I TROW, THE HARDER THEY HIT!

THE MONTH OF JUNE WAS WELL UNDER WAY BEFORE SAMMY WON HIS FIRST GAME

GRAY WON 20 GAMES IN 1928, 18 IN 1929, AND ONLY FOUR LAST YEAR.

By JACK SORDS
Central Press Sports Artist
Nineteen Thirty-One means more to Sammy Gray, St. Louis Browns' pitcher, than it does to most any other hurler in the big leagues. Gray is determined to "come back" this year with a bang. And he needs a comeback.

This season the Browns will have many young players in their lineup at the start of the campaign and with these youngsters up at the plate, eager to make a good showing with the stick, Gray may receive much better batting support. In which event, it is quite likely that Sammy's old confidence will return and with it his winning form.

Many Problems For McCarthy

New Leader Of Yankees Has Not Seen Yanks In Action Since 1927

FEW CHANGES ARE DUE THIS YEAR

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Joe McCarthy, new pilot of the New York Yankees, is not going to attempt to solve any of his various problems until he has seen his charges in action.

The former manager of the Cubs has not seen the Yankees play since the World Series between New York and Pittsburgh in 1927, and half a dozen important cubs in that Yankee aggregation no longer are with the club. So "Moose Joe" will have little first hand information to guide him at training camp, and realizes the futility of trying to pick a starting lineup at this time.

"I'm going to training camp with an open mind," the genial, lantern-jawed leader told baseball scribes at the get-together session here late yesterday. "Every possible combination will be tried to solve the second and third base problems and the center and left field problems."

A couple of months ago McCarthy made the flat announcement that Ben Chapman, originally a third baseman, would play second base and Tony Lazzeri third, an experiment which was tried last season with fair success. But after thinking about the matter more carefully, Joe says he will put the Wallingford Wen back at the hot-stone sack if Chapman becomes erratic.

Explains Disagreeable Taste In City Water

During the past few weeks there has been a more or less disagreeable taste in the city water, which has caused considerable comment. H. B. Richards, superintendent of the Water Company, states that this trouble is not confined to New Castle, but is prevalent all over Pennsylvania and adjoining states where the recent unusual and protracted drought seriously curtailed the available water supply in the rivers.

There is always present during the summer months a type of vegetable growth which is called algae, and during ordinary seasons this is not especially troublesome because the repeated rains keep the growth pretty well washed out of the pools.

During the last summer when there was no rainfall the water in the pools up-stream practically disappeared and this algae growth spread pretty much all over the drainage area in the dry pools of the stream lying out in the hot sun.

The slight rains and light thaws this fall and winter have not been

Former Banking Executive Will Serve His Term

Former New York State Banking Superintendent Must Serve 5 To 10 Years

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Frank H. Warder, former state banking superintendent, must start for Sing Sing prison on Tuesday to begin a sentence of five to ten years.

Warder was convicted of a bribe of $10,000 to postpone examination of the City Trust Company shortly before its $5,000,000 failure.

Warder's last hope in his fight to stave off starting his prison term faded after Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo of the court of appeals upheld the appellate division's affirmation of the trial jury's verdict.

Warder was convicted more than 14 months ago and has been free on $50,000 bail.

CLUB PROBLEM STRESSED AT LEADERS' FIRST MEET
The problems club members and might be different, and untreated well supplies are apt to be unusually dangerous during a drought.

All water, from whatever source, originally was surface water and on its way to springs, wells or rivers picks up out of the soil something more or less of everything with which it comes in contact. This is the reason that untreated supplies frequently cause typhoid or other types of sickness because of the presence of sewerage solution from outhouses or leaky sewers.

Mr. Richards states even though there may be an unavoidable taste in the city water, it is absolutely safe for use.

You cannot help feeling sorry for the stars and nebulae many light years away who still have the year 1930 coming to them.—The New York Times.

Young American Artists In Paris Seen As Aimless

By ALICE LANGELIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Jan. 9.—A large majority of the American artists who come over to Paris to study are like the babes in the wood, declares one of them, Frederick Kann, whose work has been admired at the recent showing of the Surrenderists.

"They all come over with good intentions," says the American artist, "but wander around from atelier to atelier, never quite finding their niche. Looking back un-leaders face were emphasized at the first meeting of Y. M. C. A. Boy's Department club leaders this year.

held in the association building on Thursday evening, R. L. Meerman's general secretary of the "Y" was present. The meeting was an open forum. Twelve clubs were represented, including the Phalanx, Upparatana, Neighborhood clubs, Junior Employed Boys, Hi-Y's and Graon the old masters and endeavoring to copy them, they run the great danger of forgetting to look within themselves which is of far greater importance, to find their own talents.

"Every artist has his own manner, his own path which he should follow to give vent to the best expression. As long as he does not find this path, he gropes about among the old masters, copying instead of creating."

Kann, who has done some interesting commercial art work in Paris, believes that, although there are the external absolute laws of harmony which are the same in music as in art, each period and each individual has his own keynote, its own characteristic of application.

All external, concrete motives that are being used in art today are only the stones with which the perfect building should be constructed. It matters little what stones are being used, what subjects are chosen. The important thing is that they should be put together in the best possible way.

Swallowing Tooth Fatal To Woman

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—The death of Mrs. Minnie Thiel, 31, was attributed today to pneumonia which developed from an inflammation caused by a gold tooth which slipped down her throat and into her lung while she was under an anesthetic.

Members of Mrs. Thiel's family said she complained of pains in her chest after having some teeth extracted under an anesthetic three weeks ago. On December 30 she was taken to a hospital and the gold crown removed from her lung.

but the inflammation already had brought on pneumonia.

The name of the dentist who pulled Mrs. Thiel's teeth was not known.

If the calendar simplificationists really want popular support they should figure out a way to make years like 1930 considerably shorter.
